WITNESS SAYS HE ACTED UNDER ALLER'S ORDERS

ADMITS TAMPERING

Tells Court He Removed Cement from 100 Sacks in Boxcar

Frienda Redd of Waldo, an employe of L. L. Aller, LaRue contractor, today testified that Aller instructed him to remove cement from the sacks called for in plans of the Marion-Delaware-rd and then used the remainder of the cement in the sacks for construction of the highway.

Redd was the chief witness of the state today in the trial of Aller, indicted by the grand jury on charges of fraud in connection with a public work and accused of carrying away cement to be used in the construction of the Marion-Delaware-rd.

Redd admitted on the witness stand that he "removed quantities of cement from about 100 sacks, using a galvanized scoop in the process."

"Ordered by Aller"

Redd testified that he was instructed by Aller to remove the cement and stated that the contractor told him that "he would make it right with him." Redd asserted that he was instructed by the contractor to not remove cement while J. J. Oberlander, state highway engineer and inspector, was in the vicinity of the cement cars.

Oberlander yesterday testified that he had seen Redd the morning of Sept 8 leap from a car of cement with empty sacks in his hand. The employe admitted that he was in the car at the time.

"Broke Seals"

Redd asserted that he had broken the seals of 100 sacks within nine days.

Few other witnesses had been called by the state up to noon today while the defendants in the case had not subpoenaed a witness.

The trial began early yesterday before Judge J. W. Wright, of Bucyrus.

State Highway Engineer J. I. Oberlander was the chief state witness yesterday and six others were called before court adjourned for the day. Among those summoned to the stand were:

J. M. Meredith, Sunbury; Calvin Retterer, Waldo; George Harruff, Marion; John Anstine, Fredericksburg; Albert Augenstine, Waldo; George Parker, Marion; John Grigsby, Waldo; and Roy Boyd, Waldo.

MUSSOLINI CONFERS WITH BRITISH FOREIGN HEAD

Newspapers Predict Meeting Will Aid Peaceful Strengthening of Europe

Leghorn, Italy, Sept. 30—Premier Mussolini, accompanied by Under Secretary For Foreign Affairs Grandi, embarked from here today on the government yacht, "Gihana," for a secret meeting with Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, who arrived aboard the yacht, "Dolphin," yesterday.

While the object of the meeting has been carefully guarded and the conference will be held at sea, far from interruption, it is regarded as of the utmost international importance.

While the Italian press generally declares that Mussolini and Chamberlain have no conflicting questions to discuss, the Popolo D'Italia and other papers predict that the meeting will contribute largely to a peaceful strengthening of the new Europe.

SEEK BOXER WHOSE BLOW CAUSED OPPONENT'S DEATH

New York, Sept. 30—Police today were searching for Frank Leiberman, whose knockout of Joseph Gerrity, 18, in an amateur boxing match resulted in Gerrity's death.

Leiberman left the ring without knowing that Gerrity was in a serious condition.

YES! WE'RE ALIKE BUT DIFFERENT

BORN within a few days of each other in May, 1883, wearing the same uniforms, doing the same work, weighing within a few ounces of each other, wearing the same size hat, and within a half inch of the same stature!

That seems highly improbable, but it is an established fact and on record at Fire Station No. 3, Mark-st.

The three individuals concerned are all firemen on the same trick. Their names, addresses, height, weight and date of birth are as follows:

Fred Reiff, 170 E. Fairgrounds-st, five feet, 11 inches tall; weight, 189 pounds; born May 31, 1883.

E. H. Ladd, 514 Cherry-st, five feet, 11 inches tall; weight, 190 pounds; born, May 26, 1883.

R. M. Miller, 482 Park-st, five feet, 11 inches tall, weight, 187 pounds; born, May 18, 1883.

Temperaments Differ

While these three men are alike in so many ways still their temperaments are vastly different.

First of all Ladd is an amiable fellow of much conversation. He is the spokesman for the firemen at the station, and the life of every party.

CLAIM $336,000 IN WAR STAMPS COUNTERFEITS

Nationwide Plot in 1919 Issue Uncovered in Cleveland Court

Cleveland, Sept. 30—Of the $19,000,000 worth of war savings stamps of the 1919 series, presented for redemption so far to the treasury, more than $336,000 have been pronounced counterfeits, disclosing a plot of nationwide ramifications, it was revealed in United States District Court here today.

Myles McCahill, special secret service agent of the Bureau of Engraving, Washington, testified in the case of Joseph Zotarelli and Birjo Russo, charged with counterfeiting, that the latter had admitted to him that he had passed 1,500 of he $5 stamps here.

Other huge sums have been circulated in Pittsburgh, New York, Chicago, Detroit and other large cities, the government witness declared.

TEN PERSONS ALREADY HAVE BEEN CONVICTTD

Washington, Sept. 30—The federal government has already convicted 10 persons in connection with the gigantic war savings stamp counterfeiting conspiracy, secret service officials declared today.

The major conspirators were sentenced in Chicago six months ago. About $193,000 worth of counterfeit stamps were seized in Chicago. Other seizures were made at Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Officials expressed the belief that most of the counterfeit stamps of the 1919 issue have been confiscated by the government.

2,000 CHINESE FISHERMEN ARE REPORTED DROWNED

Dispatches Declare Typhoon Sweeping China Sea Destroyed 150 Junks

London, Sept. 30—A Central News dispatch from Hong Kong today stated that 2,000 Chinese fishermen were drowned and 150 fishing junks destroyed by a typhoon which swept the China Sea on Monday.

The storm missed Hong Kong by a narrow margin.

Steamers coming into Hong Kong reported that they had picked up numerous fishermen found clinging to their wrecked craft.

The Chinese were so thick in the raging sea that one steamer launched its lifeboats 10 times to bring aboard loads of battered and half drowned survivors.

DEFECTIVE SWITCH IS BLAMED IN DERAILMENT

Washington, Sept. 30—A defective switch was responsible for the derailment of a passenger train on the Long Island Railroad at Galverton, N. Y., on Aug. 13, resulting in the death of seven persons and the injury of 28 others, according to findings made public today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Section Foreman Dinizo was held primarily responsible for the defective condition of the switch.

Play Ball!

Star's Baseball Board Ready To Give Fans Game Play-by-Play

Star service counts.

Do you remember the excellent service The Star furnished Marion sportsmen on one of the biggest sports events of the year—the Dempsey-Tunney fight?

The Star opened its auditorium to the public and with a telegraph wire direct to the ringside in Philadelphia, gave both the immense crowd in the auditorium and the throng in the street in front of The Star building a blow-by-blow account of the big fight.

The Marion Star is planning to give this same fine service to Marion baseball fans during the world series which opens Saturday.

The Star's baseball board will give a play-by play account of the game. The board already has been erected in front of The Star building and will be in play when the first ball is pitched at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in New York.

The city edition of The Star will be on the streets immediately after the last play and will give a detailed and complete account of the games.

See the game played on The Star's board.

Then get the city edition of The Star and read about it.

LABOR TO OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR SHORTER WEEK

SEES GENERAL ACCEPTANCE

A. F. of L. Head Says Increased Leisure To Bring Increased Production

Washington, Sept. 30—Encouraged by action of Henry Ford in adopting the five day week, the American Federation of Labor will fight vigorously for a shorter working week in industry, William Green, president, declared today.

Green does not believe that there will be universal acceptance immediately of the five-day week, but he thinks that in a few years employers will realize that with the increased production through time saving machines, wages will be increased and working hours reduced.

The federation, not Ford, should be given credit for first bringing about the shorter week, Green said.

Already Established

"Ford seems merely to have accepted the philosophy of the federation in regard to hours, wages and production," Green declared.

Through the federation's activity, the five-day week already has been established in two important trades, printing and fur working, said Green.

"The week now for the day printing trade is 44 hours, or five and one-half days," Green explained. "In most of the night printing trades, it is 40 hours, or five days.

"Two months ago, we made agreements whereby the fur working trade has a 40-hour week, or five days, as Ford has now established."

The five-day week will come first in the so-called confining trades, Green said.

Top Speed Necessary

DAUGHERTY'S DEFENSE PLUNGES INTO ACTION

George E. Williams Called to Stand as First Witness; Address Waived

New York, Sept. 30—Defense counsel in the conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, today waived the opening address to Judge Julian Mack in Federal Court as they plunged into their evidence.

The defense promptly summoned George E. Williams, managing director of the alien property custodian's office under Miller in 1921, to the stand. Williams, about whom much of the government's case has been woven, is regarded as the star witness for the defense.

Motions to dismiss the indictments charging conspiracy against Daugherty and Miller were dismissed by Federal Judge Julian Mack yesterday.

Judge Mack spent a day and a quarter in his chambers hearing the argument of Max Steuer, counsel for Daugherty, and Colonel William Rand, attorney for Miller, for dismissal of the case. The proceedings were secret and only the fact that the motions were denied was made public.

FARMER DIES OF HURTS SUSTAINED IN ACCIDENT

Dayton, Sept. 30—Charles Schoeder, 60, farmer, died in Miami Valley Hospital here early this morning after being struck late last night by an automobile driven by George Wappelhort near Schroeder's home on the Xenia pk two miles south of here.

Wappelhort was just leaving a barbecue stand and Schroeder was crossing the road front an automobile in which he had been riding when the accident occurred. Wappelhort was released by police after he brought the injured man to the hospital and reported to headquarters.

Forty-Three Rescued Men Regaining Strength After Five Days Trapped in Mine

Only Two Workers in Serious Condition and Both Will Recover, Say Physicians; Ironwood Becomes Carnival City as People Rejoice

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 30—With their grim experience a fast waning memory, the 43 men rescued from the G. Pabst mine here late last night were regaining their strength and returning to their loved ones today.

Only two were in a serious condition, although there is no doubt in the minds of attending physicians that they will recover. They are Thomas Trewarthn, stout-hearted shift boss, and Mat Stulich. And Ironwood, its fears and cheers of last night already forgotten, has returned to its normal state of complacency and iron mining. There are murmurings of an investigation into the collapse of the hanging wall of the G. Pabst mine, but as yet no action in this direction has been undertaken.

John B. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland Daily Press, has announced that he has called on state and federal agencies to make a sweeping inquiry into the condition of the wrecked shaft.

Resting in Hospital

But the men who were held in their subterranean prison 727 feet below the surface of the ground are not interested in investigations. They are resting on cots in the Grandview Hospital telling some of the episodes of their harrowing experience.

Jacob Luoma, the father of nine children, has a ready smile as he tells of the underground prison.

"I guess we could have stood it another week," he says. "It wasn't so bad. We were afraid that no one would reach us until it was too late.

"We felt pretty safe. After the first slide, we got busy and blocked up the shaft with timbers so that no more falling rock could clog up in it.

"Some of the men had their lunches left, so we divided them, then Joe Anderson showed us how to strip birch bark from some of the log supports. I smoked and it wasn't so bad. We made some tea from the bark and that helped brace us up a lot.

Going Back

"The water got into our shoes after a while and some of the men got pretty cold feet. They took off their shoes and wrapped their feet in pieces of blankets which we found in the safety box.

Mike Dedera, husky and beaming, was happy to be able to see daylight again.

"To come up from down there, it was just like Jesus going up from the earth," was Mike's exultant description of the rescue.

At the side of Joseph Smith sat his wife.

"Now I can sleep again," she told her husband. "For five nights I have walked up and down the house wait-

ENGLISH MINERS TALK ENDING OF LONG STRIKE

Delegates Avoid Any Definite Decision Although Leaders Admit Defeat

London, Sept. 30—The miners delegates today resumed their discussion of government proposals for an ending of the long strike.

Although the strike has practically broken, with defeat admitted by the union leaders, the stoppage must last at least another week, as the delegates have avoided any definite decision.

Instead, they voted to refer the question directly to the different districts, asking them to consider the proposals and report next Thursday.

The districts also will be asked to consider the counter-proposal to the government made by A. J. Cook, their secretary, in which he offered to accept substantial wage reductions.

TAKE 350,000 CIGARETS FROM BINDLEY STOCK

LOSS NOT INSURED

Warehouse Entered Second Time in Six Months; $1,500 Loot Taken Before

Cigarets valued at $2,100 and a Reo truck were stolen by burglars who entered the storage rooms of the Bindley Grocery Co., 202 N. State st, last night.

The truck was used to haul away the robbers' loot.

This is the second time that the Bindley company's place of business, a wholesale grocery house, has been burglarized in the last five months, $1,500 worth of cigarets having been taken in a robbery committed last May. It is believed by the Bindley management and local police authorities that both jobs were the work of the same gang.

That this robbery was executed by skilled professional burglars is evident from the systematic manner in which they went about their work. Just how entrance to the Bindley building was gained is a mystery. The front office door bears marks which indicate that a jimmy was used in an effort to force an opening but it is not certain that this was accomplished, as the door was locked this morning.

The stolen cigarets were in 35 cases of 10,000 each. Whether any other goods were taken will not be known until a check up of the Bindley stock, now under way, is completed. The Bindley Company carried no burglary insurance on the stolen goods. All of the cigarets were Lucky Strikes and Camels.

The local police department was immediately notified when the burglary was discovered about 5:30 o'clock this morning and messages were broadcast at once to police of all surrounding towns and cities. There are no definite clews, however, regarding the route which the burglars followed in making their getaway. Reports have been received of the truck having been seen in three widely separated places on roads leading out of Marion but this only

CLEVELAND FIRM GETS SEWAGE PLANT CONTRACT

Bids $2,300 on Work of Frost and Waterproofing Concrete Walls

The City Board of Control today awarded the contract for waterproofing and frost proofing concrete work at the municipal sewage treatment works to the Western Waterproofing Co. of Cleveland. This firm was the only bidder and will be paid $2,300 for the work.

At the time the sewage plant was constructed the engineer in charge advised city officials to have all of the concrete surfaced with material to protect it against the weather and acid corrosion. Part of this work was authorized and is now being completed by the concern which was awarded today's contract. Action on the remainder of the surfacing was delayed, however, due to a question which arose regarding use of sewage plant bond issue money for this purpose. A ruling from the attorney general was obtained to the effect that the expenditure would be legal and City Council accordingly authorized completion of the improvement.

A patented process is used in the surfacing and is said to be necessary to prevent serious damage to the concrete tanks constructed at the sewage plant.

INDICT YOUNGSTOWN MAN ON BOMBING OF GROCERY

Drug Clerk Identifies Assunto Clinto as Purchaser of Ether at Store

Youngstown, Sept. 30—Assunto Clinto, alias Frank Clinto, was under indictment today in connection with the bombing last week of the Youngstown Grocery Company's warehouse which injured a dozen persons.

Authorities claimed that the indicted man was identified by a druggist's clerk as the person who bought 50 pounds of ether immediately prior to the explosion. Authorities believe that ether was used in the blast.

G. Silvestri, president of the grocery concern, was to be quizzed by state fire marshals here today.

Beautiful But Unclad Young Woman Causes Riot in Belgrade Restaurant

BELGRADE, Sept. 30 — The present craze for nudity in central Europe almost caused a riot in one of this city's most fashionable restaurants, it was learned today. The place was crowded with diners when a taxi drew up before the entrance and a beautiful but entirely unclad young woman alighted. The surprised audience gazed at her back as she calmly counted out the fare to the driver.

But when she turned around to enter the restaurant it was disclosed that she did not even wear the conventional fig leaf. As she came into the crowded room, there was a furore.

Some people jumped to their feet to depart, others jumped to their feet the better to gaze at the scene. Some were sympathetic, some horrified.

But ignoring her reception, the young Eve walked with leisurely measured pace through the rows of tables on the terrace and into the main dining room. She sat down at a table and nonchalantly waited for someone to take her order. Managers and waiters were not so tranquil, however. As a crowd of obliging guests crowded around to hide her from the vulgar gaze, police arrived and threw their cloaks around the disturber. Later they ascertained that she was a respectable married woman.

"I have only gone a step further than the modern style," she said in explanation. "Why should women not go entirely unclothed? It would be more decent."

But the judge failed to agree and gave the modern Eve a two day sentence.

FT. LAUDERDALE STORM DAMAGE TOLD IN LETTER

Former Resident of Marion Writes Relatives Hero of Hurricane Experiences

A graphic account of the recent storm disaster in Florida was received by Mrs Perry Sloesterk, 307 Kennedy-et, from her brother, Ray Hemmerly of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., former resident of this city.

There is not a house in Ft. Lauderdale or Miami that is not damaged in some way, according to Mr. Hemmerly. At least 75 per cent of all the houses have the roofs blown off and at least 50 per cent of all the houses are half wrecked, he says.

"We got the storm warnings on Thursday and Friday but after the other storm in July we thought we would go [illegible] the storm. We [illegible] the worst [illegible] but in spite [illegible] prepared [illegible]

Lights Out

"[illegible] things we could get to the beach. The wind was picking up the waves then, not high but not dangerous although the wind was [illegible] about 70 miles an hour. We came home and went to bed, but the wind began to [illegible] until about 2 o'clock Saturday morning when the storm began to carry. We had ice storm began to carry. We and a couple of candles and they gave us a little light.

"About 3 30 o'clock our front door blew open and everything in the house was soaked in an instant. I had just got a new board to make an ironing board and I nailed it across the door and it held it shut from then on. It seemed a week before daylight and we though the house would go at any time. When it got light enough to see there were lots of trees blown over and our garage was partly blown down and the east wall had started going out.

Tried To Eat

"We got breakfast and tried to eat but just as we sat down the south wall of the house cracked like a shot gun and a large crack opened up right along the ceiling. This rather spoiled our breakfast with plaster but we did not feel hungry after that. I went around the house to see how things were looking. The house north of us was still standing but the roof was going off just like some one was under it knocking it off. The wind was then blowing about 120 miles an hour and the only way I could go was to hold onto the house and crawl around. I could see roofs of houses and sheet iron going through the air. The roof of a store room a block away lit right in front of the house and the two by six rafters ran into the ground and broke off. The school buildings have all been turned into hospitals and it will be some time before there will be any school."

Mrs. Zua Campbell of Tampa, Fla., former resident of this city and an aunt of Mrs. M. H. Betz, N. Grand-av, suffered no ill effects from the storm according to word received by Mrs. Betz.

A Splendid Opportunity for the Right Man

This advertisement is not intended for the chronic job hunter, for we have no room for such a man in our organization.
Previous selling experience is not absolutely necessary, but business standing, prestige and a clean reputation are necessary. We prefer a man of mature age.
We are particularly interested in securing the services of men who are now employed in some other line of endeavor but who are imbued with a desire to advance more rapidly in the business and financial world. To such men who are able to furnish the very best of references as to former performance, and who are between the ages of 25 and 55, we are prepared to offer a mighty attractive proposition.
If interested, communicate with our local manager, Mr. Chester L. Lane, Room 617 Toledo Edison Bldg., Toledo, Ohio, for appointment.

Republican Campaign in Ohio Officially Launched at Newark Meeting

[illegible], Sept. 30—The Republican campaign in Ohio was launched officially today in the crowded [illegible] room with an elaborate program featured by addresses by [illegible] gubernatorial candidate, Frank B. Willis, himself in the Senatorial [illegible] management and economy in state government [illegible] Cooper in his address. He said the increase in [illegible] state government has been more than 430 per cent and in the last five years, it has been 80 per cent.

"The big issue in this campaign is excessive increase in the cost of government and the imperative need for better business methods," Cooper declared. "We have been drifting down stream in public expenditures and the time has come when we must turn and row against the tide.

Living Beyond Income

"We are living beyond our income and no business, either public or private, can succeed under such a policy indefinitely."

"We are faced with the necessity of finding a remedy," he continued, "and the remedy which I very clearly visualize is that of reducing the cost of government through increased efficiency, the elimination of waste and extravagance, and unnecessary personnel, and the driving of the hardest bargain possible in the large purchases which have to be made by the state, in the matter of road construction, the maintenance and operation of state institutions, and the furnishing of supplies for the ordinary departments of state government."

Discussing taxation, Cooper declared for a policy of a combined tax limitation on rates which may be levied on property in the state and for the principle of debt limitation in all taxing districts.

Reorganization of the highway department "to insure efficiency and economy" were promised by Cooper in the event he is elected in November. He also declared for reorganization of the welfare department "to end the delay of nearly four years in providing adequate facilities for taking care of the state's feeble-minded."

While not mentioning the controversial prohibition issue, Cooper declared he stands "four-square for the enforcement of all laws federal and state."

Governmental Economies

Senator Willis in his speech dwelt on the governmental economies brought about by the Republican administration in Washington since it came into control five years ago.

He reviewed the financial achievements of the Harding and Coolidge administrations, declaring that federal taxes have been reduced at the rate of $5,000,000 while at the same time the public debt has been paid off at the rate of $3,000,000 per day.

Mrs. Harriett Taylor Upton, of Warren, member of the state executive committee, was also one of the speakers. Fred W. Warner, Marion, state executive chairman was temporary chairman of the meeting, while Congressman William Morgan, Newark, presided.

Two special trains bearing 700 Republicans arrived from Cincinnati and Cleveland, each bringing a band. Five hundred automobiles invaded the town carrying another thousand members of the party.

EXPECT BOOST IN RETAIL PRICE OF SUGAR HERE

Forecast Based on Shortage in Nation's Supply, Which Boosts Quotation

A small increase in the retail price of sugar is forecast for Marion and vicinity as the result of a shortage in the nation's supply which sent the refiners' quotation on the New York market up to six cents a pound, the highest figure of the year, Wednesday. This means that sugar will soon be selling at the local stores for probably seven and a half and eight cents a pound. The present price ranges from six and a half to seven cents.

These quotations apply to 100-pound sacks, the retail price for smaller quantities running from a cent to two cents higher on a pound.

There is little likelihood of the retail cost going beyond this latest increase, according to views on the situation expressed by Josiah Bindley, president of the Bindley Grocery Co. of 202 N. State st, which is one of the largest sugar jobbing concerns in this part of Ohio.

Beet Shipment

Mr. Bindley says that shipments of beet sugar from the extensive Ohio and Michigan fields will begin to arrive at the Marion market some time in October and that this supply, creating competition for the cane sugar producers, will serve as a check against rising prices. Beet sugar plants in Utah and other points in the West are already in operation and the Ohio and Michigan mills are scheduled to start soon. Beet sugar will probably be quoted at from 20 to 40 cents below the present 100-pound price.

The six-cent rate established by refiners throughout the country Wednesday represents the price that jobbers like the Bindley Co. must pay. The freight charge from New York to Marion is 43 and a third cents on a hundred pounds. Jobbers in the Marion district have been wholesaling the product at $6.40 a hundred and the prevailing retail prices of from $6.50 to $7 provides evidence of the small margin of profit maintained by both wholesalers and retailers here.

Cause of Shortage

The present shortage of sugar is due to several underlying factors, Mr. Bindley says. One of the chief causes is lack of shipping facilities resulting from the fact that many vessels formerly used in transporting sugar to the United States from Cuba are now engaged in carrying American-mined coal to Great Britain. This is due to an unusually heavy demand for coal from other countries resulting from the British miners' strike, which has been in progress for several months.

In addition to this, Cuban sugar producers have placed a limit on the exporting of this year's output in order to dispose of a large surplus that had accumulated in the Cuban storage houses.

The arrival of the fruit and canning season in the United States is regarded as the primary cause of the latest price increase, however. The demand for sugar is invariably greatly increased at this season of the year but it is not likely that the market price would have been for the present shortage of supply.

MARION AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIMS IMPROVING

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Coler and Miss Mildred Moore, 235 Blaine-av, who are in White Cross Hospital, Columbus, suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident near Westerville Saturday are reported improved today. Miss Moore developed pneumonia which added to the seriousness of her condition. Mr. Coler's injuries were also serious although Mrs. Coler has improved so greatly that it is hoped she may be removed to the home of her brother, Carroll Moore of Westerville, in the near future.

What is news, anyway?

That depends a good deal on you. If you're one type of person, news is divorces, and murders, and heir-to-millions-hangs-self. If you're another type, news is closing quotations on the stock exchange. If you're somebody else, news is final scores at the ball-field or race-track.

But no matter what type of person you are, news is also information about the things you need and use in your every-day life. If there's a new style in coats or shoes or gloves—that's news. If there's a new type of vacuum cleaner or radio battery or vitamin—that's news. If there are improvements in automobiles, new records for the player piano, a better toothpaste—that's news.

You get all this news in the shape of advertisements. It's pretty important, advertising is. It keeps you informed about all kinds of things you need to know. It helps you. It saves you time and mistakes.

Do Your Gums Bleed and Recede from the Teeth?

Tender, sore or bleeding gums, or gums fissured or receding from the teeth, indicate DEADLY PYORRHEA—the teeth's worst enemy. The disease first attacks the gums, later the tooth structure. As the gums recede from the teeth, pus pockets are formed, in which toxic poisons develop to be absorbed by the system and become the possible sources of other dangerous diseases. Don't let Pyorrhea endanger your health. The ravages of this terrible disease can be stopped, the gums healed and the poison the system has been absorbing checked, by the use of VINCENT'S PYORRHEA TREATMENT. For further particulars write,

Expect Heavy Volume of Freight Over Western Lines of Pennsylvania Railroad

Prospects for Increased Business During Remainder of This Year Very Bright, According to J. E. Weller, Western Region Traffic Manager

Prospects for a heavy volume of freight over Western lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad for the remainder of the year were reported today by J. E. Weller, traffic manager of the Western Region with headquarters at Chicago.

Business in the territory surrounding Marion during the last few months has shown a substantial increase, according to reports issued. A large amount of highway work under contract has caused a heavy volume of road building material traffic, although building operations in this vicinity are reported as not quite so active.

Record Movement

On Saturday, Sept. 18, the Western Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad, of which Marion is a part, moved the largest number of loaded cars in its history. Movement on this day amounted to 19,200 loaded cars, breaking a previous record made last May.

Crop conditions are everywhere reported favorable and in southern Ohio, a considerable increase in the movement of wheat was reported over last year. A portion of this movement passed through Columbus and Marion.

Coal movements over the Pennsylvania Railroad through Marion have been increased this year and are recorded in the general business of the Western Region.

Private Car

Vice President F. G. Robbins of the Erie Railroad Co. occupied a private car on Train 13, Tuesday night, en route to Chicago.

Fill Trench

Crushed stone and gravel were used yesterday to "fill in" the trench dug under W. Center-st by workmen of the Hocking Valley Railroad in the laying of the sections of the new two-mile water line from the Garden City-pk to Bellefontaine-av.

With the exception of a few finishing touches, the water line is now complete.

Construction of the line began early in the summer but rainy weather called many halts in the job. A gang of from eight to 12 men were employed during the installation of the line.

Grotto Special

The special Grotto train scheduled from Warren to Columbus, via Marion, over the Erie and Hocking Valley Railroads, will make the run through Marion Saturday, the exact time of its departure being unknown as yet.

The Kadgar Grotto band of this city, is expected to take advantage of the special in making its trip to the Columbus Grotto meeting and the studio of the radio show, from which the band will offer a half hour concert Saturday night from 10:30 to 11 o'clock.

PILOTS MOTORCYCLE 43.3 MILES ON QUART OF GAS

Fred D. Custer, Newspaper Worker, in First Place in National Contest

Fred D. Custer of 525 E. George-st, Wednesday established the best record made thus far in a national motorcycle contest being conducted by the Harley-Davidson Motor Co. of Milwaukee, when he piloted one of the regulation Harley-Davidson models 43.3 miles on one quart of gasoline.

This demonstration, one of the most remarkable in the history of the motorcycle industry, and which gives Custer first place in reports of the nation-wide competition received up to this time, took place on the Bucyrus-pk north of Marion.

The best record reported prior to Custer's achievement is that of a Columbus contestant, who was able to get only 38 miles from a quart of gasoline.

Contest Limited

Competition is limited exclusively to newspaper employes and there are several hundred entries. Custer is employed in the composing department of the Marion Star. The Harleys-Davidson Co. will pay a first prize of $100 and a second prize of $50. It is possible that one or two other Marion motorcyclists will take part in the contest, which is scheduled to close this week.

The same Harley-Davidson model is used by all competitors. It is a lightweight motorcycle listed by the manufacturers as the New Single and results of the present contest will be used in exploiting the sale of the machine in a national advertising campaign.

Four representatives of the Marion Motorcycle Co. of 427 W. Center-st, local agency for the Harley-Davidson Co. witnessed Custer's 43-mile ride. Two of these, Charles Thatcher of 318 Greenwood-st and William Marble, 295 Willow-st, acted as official observers and signed a detailed report of the demonstration. Neither of the observers is an employe or official of the motorcycle firm.

LOCAL MOTION PICTURES TO BE DISPLAYED HERE

Marion Overland Co. To Show Films of Marion and Vicinity

Residents of Marion, Richwood, Magnetic Springs and Marion County, are the characters in the film to be thrown on the screen Friday and Saturday, at the opening of the new Marion Overland Co. building.

The motion pictures were taken during the summer months by Adam Bauer, local photographer, and will be shown continuously from 1 to 10 p. m., Friday and Saturday, on the second floor of the new Overland building. No admission is charged.

Mr. Bauer has included many interesting local events in his shots and many Marion persons will see themselves moving on the screen when they view the film.

Fair Scenes

The Marion County Fair in all its splendor will be flashed before the eyes of the many visitors at the opening. Close-ups of the finish of several heats in the races are shown, the large crowds moving about the grounds furnish much amusement, and interesting close-ups of several of the largest exhibits are displayed.

All men and women employed at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. have a place in another portion of the picture. Mr. Bauer arrived on the scene just as the noon whistle blew and "shot" scenes showing the workers streaming out of the offices and shops of the Steam Shovel Co.

School Views

The Masonic dedication at Richwood a few weeks ago will be shown in the picture. Almost every resident of that village is seen in the film covering a portion of the ceremonies.

Park Pictures

The entire film consists of four reels, jammed full of action and interesting scenes. No subtitles have yet been furnished for the production. Two comedies and a "Whippett" are to be shown in connection with the local pictures Friday and Saturday.

Over 130,000 witnessed the big Sequl bout but comparison is not possible. Admission was not by ticket at De Russe lane.

Having survived Mr. Kipling's poem, there doesn't appear to be any reason why we can not manage to get along outside the World court.

Al. Smith has been nominated for a fifth time for governor of New York state. What was once an experience has become a habit with Alfred.

In other words, when the elder statesmen told the Spanish king they would throw him out if he wasn't good, Alphonso responded: "Come ahead! Who's afraid?"

"Farewell to the Appalachian Chestnut" reads an editorial headline in a Columbus paper. The designating term is used to signify that the chestnut referred to is the kind with a worm in it and not the moth-eaten variety.

Aimee McPherson's statement that she owns property out in Los Angeles of a value in excess of $600,000 gives us a new line on the financial possibilities of evangelizing.

A crime wave is said to have developed in Russia with the return to vodka. If vodka can cause a wave of crime discernible above the crime flood general over in that country, it's our guess that vodka is a twin brother to the stuff the bootleggers sell over here.

Let us hope that the news of the finding of a Japanese beetle in a Washington garden will be broken to Senator Johnson by degrees. "Uncle Hiram" has had shocks enough of late without running him, unprepared, up against a thing like that.

Rabindranath Tagore, Indian poet and philosopher, says western civilization is crumbling, and sometimes when we read about some of the monkey-shines being cut up all over the country we are a bit inclined to fear that way ourself.

There's one advantage which Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid will have over a lot of newly-weds. Belgium and Scandinavia aren't overly strong for butter-knives.

After a thorough diagnosis of her case, Dr. Lloyd George can see but one remedy for what's ailing Great Britain, and, of course, his inherent modesty naturally estops him from suggesting that.

There is no occasion for surprise that the plan to appoint twenty-five public defenders up in the Forest City to handle the cases of indigent defendants has met with opposition in the Cleveland Bar association. In every bar association in a city of the size of Cleveland--and in those of many cities far smaller, for that matter--there will always be found some representatives of that class of attorneys for whom small "pickings" have their allure

They Escape a Horrible Fate.

Although the announcement had been flashed by telegraph and radio, late Wednesday afternoon from Ironwood, Michigan, that communication had been established with the forty-three men who had been trapped in the Pabst mine since last Friday; that all were alive and that food had been passed to them, it was not till the news of their safe rescue came later on that the dread which has weighed upon the entire land for days was dissipated. Confined at the depth they were, there was always the possibility that a cave-in or some other accident might so impede the work of the rescuers that it might turn out in vain.

Death must come to all of us, and it comes in many forms. But possibly no form of death is so generally repugnant to thought as that which comes from being buried alive whether in the earth or under the sea. It was this feeling which added to the horror of the accident which befell the Pabst miners; it is the reaction from this feeling which caused all to breathe a sigh of relief over the announcement of the rescue.

And what can be said to pay full tribute to the great band of rescuers, almost every one of whom risked his life time and again to save the lives of the entrapped men? Words at such time are futile, almost as futile as would be any endeavor to express the feelings of wives mothers, sweethearts and children of the men held far down below them as they offered up their prayers for delivery.

And while the hearts of all will beat a bit faster at thought of the lives saved, all will at the same time feel not only a degree of pride over the almost superhuman efforts of the rescue party, but also pride over the fact that there is in this land of ours a spirit of initiative which makes possible the quick assembling of such a rescue force, under efficient leadership which with courage and determination pushes on and overcomes any and all obstacles which stand between it and the saving of human lives.

The Hypocrisy of It.

If former senator Atlee Pomerene makes as many keen thrusts through the arguments of the great financial interests, the international ilk and such others as champion the cancellation of the war debts owed to us by foreign powers, as Senator Frank B Willis did in his speech at the Newark campaign opening, Wednesday, the debt cancellationists are due for some very telling assaults. Both of the two old party candidates for United States senator are as one in their opposition to debt cancellation, no matter how far they may be apart on other national issues. With both of them going up and down the state speaking in opposition to the giving away of the people's money, for it amounts to that, and thus moulding the trend of the utterances of both old party orators in the state campaign, we may expect to see the campaign of propaganda which has been waged for months by the cancellationists pretty badly shattered.

The keenest thrust we have thus far come upon was that of the Republican senatorial candidate, who invited all those who hold themselves out as conscientious advocates of cancellation to show their good faith by sending in all the Liberty bonds they may hold for cancellation as a preliminary to their advocacy of cancellation of war debts by our nation.

"If you are honest in this matter," said the senator, "send in your Liberty bonds for cancellation"

There's the test which the Republican candidate prescribes, and knowing the Democratic candidate as we do from his record in the senate, we haven't a doubt but what he will be equally effective in exposing the hypocrisy and selfishness of the moneyed interests, which would have the securities of their loans strengthened and opportunity for further loans extended to their benefit at the expense of the public.

There has been and there yet is far too much prating about "the good of the world" by the cancellationists and far too little consideration on their part concerning "the good of America." They have overplayed their hands in this regard. Put your finger on a cancellationist and you will find that "he doth protest too much" of his love of the world, of his solicitude for humanity. Nine times out of ten he will be found to be swayed by the dictates of self-interest.

If Mr. Kipling's next poem doesn't show decided improvement over his last, those unfeeling Briton's are liable to throw the present poet laureate out and put him at the job.

"Confidentially," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "I never understood what business we ever had trying to break into the World court under any conditions."

General Nolan having pointed out to the Geneva arms conference that the pay of a United States soldier was fifty-eight times the pay of a French soldier and that it cost two and a half times as much to feed him, the French are liable to dislike us more than ever, but it put the kibosh, if we may be permitted to use a slang expression, on the plan to reduce armaments on a basis of expenditures.

While it is no doubt true that the great Florida storm destroyed a mighty volume of bootleg liquor, it provided, beyond all question, an ample supply of water with which to dilute such stocks as were not lost, so we may reasonably figure that the gentlemanly bootleggers are even and the fellows who might have consumed the poison lost far ahead

Albert Stump, Democratic candidate over in Indiana for United States senator was born thirty-eight years ago in a long cabin. And yet Democracy is looking about for a presidential candidate!

"What puzzles me," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "is why that explorer went to all the trouble and expense, to say nothing of time lost, to go to Africa to discover women who bob their hair and wear no clothes. The theaters and the night clubs are full of 'em, while thousands upon thousands are not so far away from the specifications as to be overly noticeable."

Will Rogers says that Charles Evans Hughes is the "funniest man" he "ever listened to" and that Benito Mussolini has "a great sense of humor." We will stand for the first proposition, but refuse to go along with the second, not so long as Benito wears those lips and that chin.

Owing to the fact that he hasn't received but one questionnaire and heard of only one survey, a Columbus paragrapher is inclined to assume that "the world is growing better, or at least more sensible." Still, the explanation may be that the efficiency experts are "on vacation," as we are inclined to say in this garden spot of the world when we try to throw on dog

The Licensing of Barbers.

In the report of a meeting of Marion's master barbers, run in our news columns a day or two ago, we were surprised to come upon a statement to the effect that a bill is being drawn up in Chicago by a committee of six, the primary purpose of which is to bring about the licensing of each and every barber in Ohio, other features of the measure looking to how and by whom barber shops may be conducted.

If the barbers of Ohio desire to pay a license fee—we understand that it is planned to make it five dollars—that is no affair of ours, nor is it a matter of pressing interest to the general public. But if the proposed measure involves a plan to create another state board or bureau for the purpose of issuing such licenses and collecting the fees therefor, that is a matter of public interest, for that will mean nothing other than another lot of state jobholders for the maintenance of which it will be necessary to add to the already heavy tax burden which the people of the state of Ohio bear. As it is, we have far too many state employes on bureaus or boards in recognition of party patriotism. There should be no further addition for such a purpose as that of the proposed measure to the present army of political pap-suckers.

Ways To Stop Foot Troubles.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Civilization has brought new conditions and new diseases. Our ancestors never wore shoes and they never had corns. I suppose they developed callouses on the bottoms of their feet, but ingrowing toenail was unknown. It is said that savage tribes develop such toughness and hardness of the soles of the feet that they can walk on pounded glass and coals of fire without suffering pain or serious damage.

Modern men, and, let it be said, too, modern women, have accustomed themselves to shoes which are damaging to the feet and toes. Shoes are taken from stock and made to fit average persons. High heels and pointed toes have added to the discomfort of the shoe and its capability of doing harm. Some of the materials used in the making of shoes prevent the evaporation of the moisture of the skin. All in all, modern methods have caused much discomfort.

It is wise for a sensible person to take pains in the selection of shoes. The shoe salesman should be ready with advice as to the fit of the shoe. A little attention of this sort will cause the avoidance of many an uncomfortable hour.

The big toe, because of its size and location on the foot, is susceptible to certain disturbances. One of these is ingrowing toenail.

The edge of the nail fits in a groove in the skin. This groove is made to hold and support the nail. Pressure of the soft tissues against the hard edge of the nail may cause injury to the delicate structures.

When once the tissues are broken an entrance is made for the admission of germs. Pus germs getting in to the tissues in this way may cause an infection followed by inflammation and pus formation.

It is said by competent authorities that young boys from fourteen to sixteen years of age are more likely to suffer from ingrowing toenail, with pus infection than are other persons. I venture to say that the activities of boys at this age, their running and jumping, their swimming, climbing, their indifference to the quality of their foot covering—that these things have something to do with the greater prevalence of the ailment at this time of life.

Careless trimming is responsible for a good many cases of ingrowing toenail. If the corners of the nail are cut off, this permits a ragged edge somewhere to grow into the tissues of the nail groove, preparing the way for infection and trouble.

I want to call attention to short and tight stockings as another factor in the production of ingrowing toenail. It is almost as much a mistake to wear the wrong kind of hosiery as it is to wear the wrong kind of shoes.

It does not pay to neglect even so simple a trouble as an irritation at the edge of the toenail. If you don't know how to take care of it yourself, consult your family doctor, the chiropodist, or the podiatrist, as he is called these days.

Cleanliness of the feet and the wearing of clean, dry stockings and shoes will do much to prevent all these troubles.—Copyright, 1926.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

Children stories are, I think, just about the most natural stories there is. If they got anything in their minds it comes out. They don't hold back anything. Here is a new kid one for you that is a whizz. A little boy come home one day and said to his mother that he had taken up physiology at school.

"Well," said the mother, "what did they learn you about the human body?"

"It's divided into three parts," her son replied "First is the cranium, where the brains are, if any. Then the thorax, in which are the lungs, the liver and the lights; and last the abdomen in which are the intestines A. E. I. O. U. and sometimes W and Y."—Copyright, 1926.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

United States authorities seized a rug the other day which was made in the pattern of a dollar bill. The rug was four feet long and two feet wide. But it was called counterfeit. Money can not be copied in big or little size.

We may be bigger physically than another man, and richer by millions, but if we are not as good as he is, we are counterfeit. He is the real thing and we are the imitation. Are you a counterfeit?

Scientists admire the ant. The ant is a well-organized, highly-efficient creature. A Harvard professor is said to think ants are more intelligent than humans. But let us not forget that the ant is a complete slave of instinct. It acts efficiently because it is instinctive to do that. The ant does not learn by experience. The ant does not face a thousand choices of varying its behavior to suit circumstances.

The special capacity of man lies particularly in the fact that he can, to some degree, master the instincts which he inherited from animal ancestors. Wherever he got it, he has something that lower animals do not have.

Hurricanes and earthquakes teach their good lessons. The flimsy building is doomed both in Florida and California. Disastrous fires, destroying cities, bring brick and stone and concrete. We do not learn easily, but we do learn. Because we learn with difficulty it sometimes takes hurricanes, earthquakes, and fires to teach us.

England has had plenty of troubles and has them yet. It takes much to discourage the English. And they pay their debts. Liverpool is starting a traffic tunnel, the greatest tunnel in the world, to cost $25,000,000. They are "through-going" people, these Britishers.

Probably the finest thing about Lady Nancy Astor, American woman in the British parliament, is that her chief interest in life appears to be children. She has six in her own family. She is a wise woman, and has discovered what really matters in life.

AUTUMN MEMORIES.

When autumn beckons one across the threshold,
And summer hastes to make her last adieu,
I long once more to tread the woodland pathways
As hand in hand I went those days with you.

To see again the mountains in the distance,
To hear the music of the waterfall,
To stop beside the stream and watch the minnows,
Or listen to some wild bird's plaintive call.

To gather brilliant leaves and late wild flowers,
So loath to choose from all the rich array
Which autumn gives to all her woodland lovers,
Who hither come, allured from care away.

Unmindful here of time or even distance,
Till softly evening mists began to gloam,
And golden sunlight yielded silver moonbeams—

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Sept. 30—Those ritzily young men who dance attendance on rich women—for a consideration—seem more plentiful than ever along the "Big Trail." The origin is invariably lowly. They usually [illegible] calling cabs or hopping bells.

And they reach mid-channel with a superficial luster that appears to fascinate women. They think they are neglected because their hands work all day. The gigolo is a soft-soaping fellow in the glossily-perfumed [illegible] of his breed.

In night clubs he has the way of a gay cavalier. He showers those little [illegible] gestures that husbands so often forget. He dances divinely and his glance never strays from his companion. The better sort [illegible] as such a classification—are not particularly dangerous.

They are merely in the Manhattan scene following "the easiest way." Straying women feel they are quite safe in the chaperonage and the slimy trail of blackmail does not lead to their doors. In exchange the gigolo is able to live and clothe himself well.

Their expenses are often paid to the fashionable resorts where they continue the role of the harmless fop—shunned by self-respecting males, but agreeably accepted by idle [illegible] lonely women. The gigolo has often reversed the copy-book formulas.

He does not always come to an [illegible] end. Three have married beautiful heiresses and are luxuriating in European capitals. But those not so fortunate come to a [illegible] when youth vanishes for the job of [illegible] gigolo depends entirely on youth.

One of those literary impostors has struck as his latest victim Richard Connell and the young Connecticut magazine writer [illegible] has been addressing literary clubs and love to various love-lorn maidens cashing [illegible] ious checks and generally carrying on. The literary celebrity faces this embarrassment. Adventurers have succeeded in impersonating Jack London, Sinclair Lewis and a dozen others successfully. And quite profitably. Cosmo Hamilton once called on a man who had been impersonating the novelist for a year. In this instance the faker was a fellow of wealth and his deception was purely for what social prestige he might gain.

The toastmaster arose and said he took great pleasure in introducing the guest of honor—Richard Harding Davis.

ALBERT STUMP.

In a log cabin on a Hoosier farm Albert Stump, Democratic candidate for United States senator from Indiana, was born in 1888. From that unpromising start he has reached the heights of success.

After graduating from high school young Stump taught in the schools of his home county and at the same time took extension courses from Indiana university. In his early twenties he entered the state university, where he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

In 1916 he entered the law school of the University of Chicago, doing work at the same time as a special lecturer on economic and political subjects for the University of Wisconsin and Indiana university. He completed his law course in June, 1917.

When war was declared in 1917 Mr. Stump joined a military training company at the University of Chicago. Starting in the practice of law at Marion, he shortly enlisted and went to the second officers' training camp. He was assigned to Camp Grant and later to the Eighty-Sixth division. He was honorably discharged in 1919 with the rank of captain and began to practice law in Indianapolis. For a time he was a member of the faculty of Butler university, coaching that school's debating teams. He is a member of Irvington Post of the American legion.

In 1916 Mr. Stump married Susan P. Thrift of Jeffersonville, Indiana, a marriage which was the culmination of a college romance started when they were students at Indiana university. They have three children—Margaret, Tom and Bob.

AIMEE TELLING KIDNAP TALE ON WITNESS STAND

Preliminary Hearing Enters Fourth Day; Mrs. Kennedy Collapses

Los Angeles, Sept. 30—With the presence of Mrs. Aimee Semple [illegible] her mother, Mrs. [illegible] held on conspiracy charges, entering the fourth day, Mrs. [illegible] story of how she was kidnaped and carried away to Mexico still [illegible] into the record today.

When court [illegible] concluded, Mrs. Lorraine Wolfinger Salfaff, who said Mrs. [illegible] her money to procure a "Miss X" will be placed on the witness stand, it was thought.

Mrs. [illegible] also held on conspiracy charges, declared the "Miss X" was to be the companion of Kenneth G. [illegible], at one time radio announcer at Carmel. The state is attempting to prove that this woman was [illegible] Mrs. McPherson and that her story of being kidnaped was a hoax.

The outstanding features of yesterday's hearing was the sudden collapse of Mrs. Kennedy during the proceedings and the reference that Mrs. McPherson had signaled to a witness on the stand. Otherwise, the third day of the hearing was uninteresting and the crowd in the courtroom, for the most part, drowsed while Mrs. McPherson's story was being read into the record.

The inference that Mrs. McPherson had signaled to a witness came when Lee Ancrum, England, city marshal of Carmel, was on the witness stand. While [illegible] the color of the hair of Mrs. McPherson, whose photographs, he admitted, had been shown to him by an undercover man before he came to the hearing, Mrs. McPherson removed her hat and England promptly said the hair was "red." He denied that Mrs. McPherson had signaled him.

Mrs. Kennedy had to be assisted from the courtroom during the morning session. She appeared to be completely upset by the trend of the hearing.

CITIES FIGHTING GAS RATE BOOST VICTORIOUS

Utilities Commission Acts Favorably on Application for More Data

Ohio cities, including Marion, which are contesting the rate schedule of the Logan Gas Co., scored a victory before the State Utilities Commission, in Columbus, Wednesday, when their application for additional data on the gas company's business came up for hearing. Twenty-one of the points listed in the application were acted upon favorably, decision was reserved on 19 points and only four were denied.

Arguments in support of the application were made by City Solicitor Grant E. Mouser, Jr., of Marion, who has been appointed by the more than 20 municipalities interested in the dispute to handle their case. He was assisted in the hearing by City Solicitors J. W. Miller of Bucyrus, John W. Myers of Elyria and M. D. Hughes of Athens.

As a result of the commission's action, final hearing will not take place until additional information regarding the gas company's receipts and expenditures is in the hands of Mr. Mouser and his associates. They have announced that they want this data for use in further cross-examination of the gas company's witnesses. It will be obtained either through voluntary action on the part of the company or from an examination of the records by W. H. Weiss of Cincinnati, engineer employed by the cities to handle the technical phases of their investigation. Further investigation will not be made, however, until the commission has acted on the 19 points upon which decision has been reserved.

Proceedings will be expedited as rapidly as possible and it is believed that a final hearing will be possible before the close of the year. In the meantime the disputed gas rates schedule is in effect, the company having furnished bond guaranteeing refunds to consumers in case it loses in the final decision.

PHYSICIANS ATTENDING DEMPSEY AT HIS HOTEL

Attaches of Ex-Champion's Staff Neither Confirm or Deny Illness

New York, Sept. 30—Although the greatest secrecy prevailed, it became known today that two physicians were in attendance on Jack Dempsey at his suite at the Hotel Belmont this morning.

No member of the ex-champion's staff would admit that he was ill, neither would anyone deny it. However, it is known that one physician was called in early this morning to attend Dempsey and later another was summoned for consultation.

Dempsey had gone to the resort following the stunning defeat he sustained at Philadelphia last Thursday when Gene Tunney lifted the world's heavyweight title. Beyond swollen and battered ears, the dethroned champion appeared to be in ring in good shape, but his activities within the ropes were subject to considerable comment.

His weariness might have been attributed to advancing years or overwork, but no one could explain why Dempsey had labored blinking of his eyes between rounds before the optics [illegible] nor why he blew gustily [illegible] his face like a man coming up [illegible] water. This was a gesture [illegible] he was not breathing [illegible] his exertions.

serves to complicate the search being conducted by authorities.

Woman Hears Truck

A woman living near the Bindley Company place of buisness states that she heard one of the trucks leaving the yard about 5 o'clock this morning but this information is not regarded as important. Police are of the opinion that the burglars had made a futile attempt left long before that hour.

The burglars first went to the garage located east of the main office and storage building and after gaining entrance by breaking the lock, picked out one of the smallest and speediest of the company's six trucks. The truck was then backed up to the door on the east side of the first floor storage room, where the company does most of its loading. The iron grating across this entrance was forced open.

Tried Elevator

The cigarets were carried down the stairway from the second floor after the burglars had made a futile aattempt to operate the elevator. They were thwarted in this move because employes had turned off the elevator's electrical connections when they left about 7 Wednesday night and the burglars were apparently unable to locate the switchboard.

Evidence that they had tried to use the elevator to facilitate transfer of the loot was discovered by Joseph Mitchell, an employe of the Bindley Co. when he reported for work about 5:30 this morning. Mr. Mitchell found the elevator in gear, showing that the mechanism had been tampered with during the night. Becoming suspicious he made a survey of the premises and found evidence of the robbery. The police were immediately notified.

Getaway Blocked

In leaving with their loot, the path of the burglars was barred on the east by a gate crossing the driveway. Unable to break the bars holding the gate in place, they lifted it off its hinges.

In the burglary last May, when 250,000 cigarets were taken, entrance to the Bindley building was gained through a window in one of the offices. Following that occurrence, iron bars were installed over all of the windows and a night watchman was placed on duty.

Believing that the building was provided with ample safeguards, the management dispensed with the watchman's services last Saturday night. The fact that the burglary came a few days later is taken as evidence that the burglars employ spotters and scouts to make surveys and report when conditions for staging a robbery are favorable.

Cigaret robberies are becoming general throughout the country, police officials state. The loot is attractive to the criminal element because of its high value and the ease with which it can be handled and marketed. By destroying the cases bearing the name of the company from whom the goods are stolen, all marks of identification are eliminated.

VERA CRUZ IS TAKING STOCK OF ITS LOSSES

Only Two Lives Lost When 90-Mile Wind Sweeps Mexican Port

Vera Cruz, Sept. 30—After withstanding the worst tropical hurricane experienced here in the last 25 years, Vera Cruz and the surrounding country today hung out the "business as usual" sign and took stock of its losses.

Through some miracle, only two lives were lost when the 90-mile wind swept in from the sea, as far as is now known, but property damage is extremely heavy. More casualties may be reported from the back country in the Jalapa area, which was also affected.

The terrific force of the storm is evidenced by the destruction of a huge steel loading bridge at the waterside, which was torn down and left a mass of twisted metal, thus depriving Vera Cruz, the chief port of Mexico, of its proper coal loading facilities for several months at least.

Today, the waters which covered the streets to a depth of as much as six feet in places, were subsiding, and the heat was extremely oppressive.

Portions of the harbor are still blocked by sunken coastal vessels which were capsized by the wind.

ing for you and now I am glad you are back."

Everybody Happy

"The baby did not want to go to school," she added.

"She said she could not do her school work while her daddy was down there."

Mrs. John Kozala, her baby in her arms, converses in Polish with her husband.

"What does she say?" he repeats.

"She says she is happy."

Everybody here, with the exception of the bereaved families of the three men who lost their lives when the cage was hurtled into the bottom of the G shaft, is happy.

Thousands Cheer

They were brought forth last night while thousands of persons cheered about the mouth of the pit and bells and whistles throughout the town set up a joyous clamor. The men had been given food and stimulants in their subterranean prison, while gangs of men labored to make safe the arduous climb necessary for exit.

When found they were boiling scraps of birchbark, hoping that the bark tea might give them some nourishment. They were well, but weakened by starvation.

In their weakened condition it was impossible for them to leave the mine immediately.

Soup, coffee, cigarets and chewing tobacco were taken to them by the perilous route through which rescuers had gained the eighth level.

This route was down nearly 2,000 feet in H shaft, across, and up 1,200 feet on shaky, fragmentary ladders in the wrecked G shaft.

First to Make Climb

George Hawes, a Pullman company safety expert, was the first to make the hazardous climb. He was followed closely by Oscar Olson, chief engineer of the mine.

The last stretch of the rescue workers' climb was made across a 50-foot chasm, bridged by a flimsy "catwalk" of rope and nails.

During the first of the five days the entombed miners had explored their vast catacombe. When they reached the twentieth level, 1,200 feet below their final haven, they found the way blocked.

Capt. Tom Trowartha who had kept up the spirit of his 42 men, was the first to greet Hawes.

"They're All Safe

"They're all safe," were his first words, but only two were visible beside him. Then he led the way back to the cavern, where most of the 42 others were sleeping.

"How those poor fellows did crowd around me," said Hawes. "Some of them almost beat me to death, pounding me on the back."

Hilarious, now that danger was over, they showed Hawes about their prison, where for five days they had subsisted on water and what few scraps were in their dinner pails when the crash came. "Here," said one of the men to Hawes, "is our restaurant." A dark mess was stewing in a dinner pail.

Plenty of Water

There was plenty of water in the shaft and a good supply of carbide and kerosene had given light to cheer the band in their long vigil.

Physicians and a crew of 30 bureau of mines experts hastened to give the famished men first aid and coddle their stomachs with soup and milk. Immediately work was started to timber the crumbling shaft and strengthen the ladders so as to make possible early delivery of the rescued.

Ironwood was a carnival town last night. Bonfires blazed and the entire town paraded the streets, shouting, cheering, breaking the tension which had held it silent for nearly a week. The town swarmed about the mine.

They gave their names and ages as Catherine Elmeda Tillman, 20, Nellie Ray Larch, 18, and Gladys Conover, 19. Their places of former residence could not be ascertained.

ORAL ARGUMENTS HEARD IN PRIMARY MOVEMENT

Court Takes Matter of Demurrer to Writ Sought by League Under Advisement

Columbus, Sept. 30—Oral arguments were heard by the State Supreme Court today on the demurrer to the writ of prohibition sought by the Primary Defense League to prevent a proposed constitutional amendment affecting Ohio's primary system from being submitted to a referendum of the voters in the November elections.

Assistant Attorney General H. H. Griswold submitted the arguments supporting the demurrer as representative of Secretary of State Thad Brown against whom the league seeks the writ, with the Primary Defense League's case presented by James A. White, its counsel.

Griswold contended that the petition of the league failed to set out facts warranting such a writ of prohibition, that remedy for the irregularities charged is to be had through a court of equity and that the Supreme Court has no original jurisdiction in equity.

White argued that the writ of prohibition asked is the only adequate remedy available and that the Supreme Court could exercise equitable jurisdiction to grant relief from an alleged fraud.

The court took the matter under advisement.

C., D. & M. FAILS TO ACT ON DELAWARE BUS PLAN

President A. F. Van Deinse Intimates Company May Abandon Proposal

The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., has not completed arrangements to furnish motor bus service in Delaware, A. F. Van Dieuse, president of the company, said today.

President Van Deinse intimated that bus service would probably never be inaugurated in that city.

The C., D. & M. Electric Co. discontinued city street car service in Delaware five weeks ago, declaring that the cars were being operated at a great loss.

Delaware City Council immediately drew up a franchise providing for a ten-year city bus service to be supplied by the C. D. & M. The franchise has not yet been accepted.

At the time of preparing the bus franchise, Delaware City Council also presented a franchise giving the C., D. & M., permission to operate interurban cars through Delaware for a period of 25 years.

Not Accepted

This franchise was not accepted because it failed to provide for the use of the "Y" switch on Williams-st, employed by the company to turn its cars in Delaware.

Williams-st in Delaware is being repaired and rebuilt and the contractor for the work had orders to cover the "Y" switch as well as other tracks on the street. A temporary injunction against the covering of the switch has been granted to the C., D. & M. and further action in connection with the switch is pending.

Whether or not the C., D. & M. will accept the franchise on the interurban service as it now stands will not be known until further developments of the case in court.

FORMER MARION GOLF PRO TO BE ARRAIGNED

John "Jimmy" Spencer, former golf professional of the Marion Country Club, and his wife, were to be arraigned today before U. S. Marshal Max Brunswick of Youngstown, on charges of unlawfully taking U. S. Liberty Bonds owned by John Burgess of Geneva, Wis., another golf professional.

The Spencers were arrested at Youngstown, Aug. 10, by federal authorities on a warrant issued by U. S. Attorney Bernstein of Cleveland. Each was placed under a bond of $5,000.

According to the federal warrant the alleged offense took place in Washington seven years ago. The bonds were valued at $4,650.

It is said by federal officers that Spencer and Burgess left their wives together when they went to Ashville, N. C., to participate in a golf tournament. When Burgess returned the bonds were missing from his apartments.

Later investigation by Burgess revealed that two of the bonds had been cashed at the Marion National Bank of this city, federal authorities said.

OBJECT TO ADDRESS OF MYERS Y. COOPER

Donahey Declares Candidate Evaded Issue Over Utilities Commission

Columbus, Sept. 30—Gov. Vic Donahey and George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, today took exception to parts of the address of Myers Y. Cooper, Republican gubernatorial nominee, made at the campaign opening at Newark.

The governor in a formal statement declared Cooper "evaded the issue over the utilities commission" and charged him with being "backed by the same utility corporations which dominated in the past."

Schlesinger's statement declared "Cooper's promises to take over the state system of roads for maintenance is only stating what will inevitably happen."

under continued and oftentimes unsatisfactory conditions that the hours should be reduced," he said. "Drudgery means decreased production, which is in turn a dead loss to the employer."

With Ford, Green believes that increased leisure goes hand in hand with increased production.

"The five day week is a sound economic principle," said Green. "The employer should bear in mind that it is good business, as Henry Ford said."

Green declared that this was the principle under which the federation would fight for the shorter work day.

"Social inequality, industrial instability and injustice must increase unless the workers' real wages, the purchasing power of their wages, coupled with a continuing reduction in the number of hours making up the working day are progressive in proportion to man's increased power of production."

Non-Partisan Attitude

As last year, the federation is expected to again adopt a strictly non-partisan attitude in the coming elections. Leaders said that this policy has reaped the greatest rewards for labor.

There may be some fireworks over Mexico, though leaders are trying to keep this question from breaking out on the floor for fear it may stir up a religious fight. The federation is the father of the Mexican labor movement. The Mexican labor leaders are staunchly supporting the Calles government in its struggle with the Catholic Church.

LOANS up to $500

In most business deals there is an element of risk. Buy a piece of property, and if you find that you have made a mistake you can't "back out." The other fellow has the money and you "are stuck" with the property.

It is different when you borrow money under the popular City Loan plan. Here there is absolutely no risk. If you decide you have made a mistake in getting a loan from us (which isn't probable), all you have to do is to pay it back—any time you want to. And you simply pay interest for the exact time you have the money—be it a day, a week, or a month. The City Loan does not want a dollar's worth of unhappy business on its books, so you can make no mistake with a popular loan.

Be it ever so elaborate or just as simple as it possibly can be, the wedding should be the happiest event possible for the young couple concerned. Where there is not a surplus of money the whole affair may be arranged inexpensively and still be delightful. Don't you remember Meg's wedding in "Little Women", where the rich guest said to her husband afterwards that it was the prettiest wedding she had ever attended, but she didn't see why as it couldn't have cost much.

The tabe set here might be used for a pre-wedding shower for the bride, an announcement dinner or for the bridal table at the wedding feast. As crepe paper is extensively used in the decorations you can see the cost would be slight, but the effect is pretty and may be elaborated as much as one cares to.

CHAPTER SIX

P. G. (Piggy) Brazenose is a young man who has a habit of getting into trouble. It's probably because his mother named him Percival Gallahad. He's really a good sort, but he doesn't take anything seriously, including the business that is Heaven and Earth to his dad. That gentleman calls Piggy into his office for a stern session. It appears that Piggy has done a sensational high dive to save a man from drowning. The papers play it up—and Brazenose Senior hates to have his name in the paper. Just as his father's indictment waxes warm, reporters are announced and Piggy leaves, promising to stay out of sight for a few days—and behave himself. He starts for New York but at the Hudson Ferry a man, of his own general type accosts him and explains that he is unable to meet a certain young lady at Grand Central, that she must be met by someone—and will Piggy do it, as a matter of chivalry? Sure, says Piggy. With a vague description of her he spots her in the crowds and steps up to her. The young lady is disconcerted. She was to have married the other chap. She is independent, very, and declines to trouble this handsome stranger. But Piggy insists on being troubled. He finds she is in real trouble. So he suggests breakfast at Sherry's and a "conference" on what to do.

CHAPTER SIX

ONCE the young man smiled surreptitiously as he pictured his father's reactions to this situation, should he ever learn of it. There was no denying that the scion of the house of Brazenose had acted upon impulse again. Then he flushed hotly, remembering the absurd accusation that he was romantic and reflecting upon the interpretation his parent would certainly put upon this adventure. He decided that it was lucky his dad would never known anything about it. But he was pricked by a disturbing possibility and asked abruptly:

"Do you believe in romance? Think there is any such thing?"

Without changing her position, the girl replied from the surface of her mind:

"'Gone are the Gods of Hunt and Dance,
And He with them. Farewell, Romance!'"

"Kipling," said Peggy instantly, "Like him."

"Of course."

He might have known she would. But he had met girls who didn't. Reassured, he lapsed into silence again. If he remembered the full content of the verses from which she had quoted, it was to dismiss the plea as part of a poet's job. Even a short-haired, red-blooded poet like Kipling, he supposed, couldn't wholly escape the taint of his trade. Which seemed a pity.

Before Sherry's door he helped her out of the cab, and while he paid the driver she crossed the pavement to the steps, turning just in time to see another hansom driven slowly past. Its only occupant, a small, dark man, leaned forward to eye her searchingly. The girl caught her breath and again the color ebbed from her face.

"Oh, la, la!" she whispered.

The restaurant was deserted, save three or four late-breakfasting men absorbed in morning papers, and Piggy chose a corner table, ordering two glasses of old sherry and biscuits. Then he leaned back in his chair, smiling at her, and said:

"Now! Let's begin. How about telling me your name, as a starter?"

"Smith. Rowena Smith. Yours, you said, is—?"

"Brazenose."

She looked at him reflectively. "I used to hear sometimes about a boy they called Piggy Brazenose."

"H'm . . . yes. Ever hear anything to his credit?" he asked warily.

"He was a great athlete at college, and was always doing daredevil things and getting into scrapes."

"Dad says I still do 'em."

"Oh! I wondered if you were he," she replied gravely, and went into a brown study from which after a long pause he jogged her.

"Well? What about it?"

"Is there any way out of this place except that?" She nodded toward the entrance they had used.

"Not that I know of. Why?"

"Isn't there a service door on an alley, or something?"

"I doubt it. I suppose you could go out through the catering place on the Avenue, at a pinch. Why?" When she did not answer, he paraphrased a line from "Floradora," then having one of its numerous revivals: "You've got to trust somebody, and it might as well be me. You can, you know."

"Y-yes, I think I can. Anyway, I've got to—a little. There's a man following me and I want to slip away from him."

"Where is he? Show me, and he won't annoy you any more."

"He hasn't annoyed me—that way." She smiled faintly. "I mean, he's not trying to flirt with me. But I saw him at the station, just standing around watching. I didn't think anything about it then, but before we came in here he drove past in a cab and leaned forward, looking at me, and I'm sure he followed us."

"Oh, I guess not." Beginning to wonder whether she was slightly demented, young Mr. Brazenose adopted the soothing tone used on occasion by all normal males toward women, children and horses—a kind of "So-o, boy, steady" tone. "Probably he just happened to be coming this way. Lots of people do. Drink some of that sherry. You're as pale as a ghost."

"I think he's a detective."

"A detective! Why should a detective be following you?"

"He might—if they found out," she returned ambiguously "though I don't see how they could. I know it sounds queer, but—it's something I can't explain. It's nothing criminal." She opened to his gaze the deep, clear pools of her eyes. "But it's almost a matter of life and death."

"To you?"

"Oh, no! I don't matter—except for what I came to do."

"I thought you came to be married," he blurted youthfully.

"I did. But for something else, too. It's that they're trying to stop, and they mustn't. I must do it."

Piggy began to realize that in championing this curious waif he had undertaken rather more than had at first appeared. But his interest and what, if he had been called upon to analyze his feeling, he would have called his sporting instincts, had been aroused.

"Hadn't you better tell me something about it?" he suggested. "Just so I'll know where we're at."

"I don't want to get you into it."

"I'm in now. You're not going to throw me out, are you?"

She gave him a grateful glance, but shook her head. "You're not very far in, and if you'll just get me away from here without that man's knowing it, you'll have done a big thing for me."

"I'll get you out, all right. What comes after that? Go on, tell me. Maybe I can help. You seem to know my reputation," he added, with his boyish grin.

"Nothing comes after that—for a while. I've got to earn some money first."

"Oh, come off!" Piggy elegantly remarked, in the tone he would have used had she been a man of his own age. "Don't be an idiot! If things are as bad as you say, you've got to get busy. Go on! I'll see you through. I happen to have a pretty fair bank balance right now, and I've seen enough of you already to back you to the limit. If I can help, I will. If I can't, I'll forget it and no harm done."

The friendly warmth of his manner, together with its utter lack of deference, the absence of the slightest implication that she was a maid and he a man, combined with her need and what she had previously heard about him to break down her reserve.

A Baking Booklet

Some kind of bread is served on the average American table three times a day. The quality of that bread is an important matter. The food value depends on the materials which go into it, whether it is made at home or in the bakery. The baking booklet has been planned primarily as a guide in home baking, but through its discussion of materials it offers help also in the choice of commercial baked products.

This invaluable offering is a Government publication, and our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling. Write your name and address clearly.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

THE words, "It is a good scheme. We'll drag her through the mire," uttered in Grace Draper's unmistakable tones, were so real to me that I could not tell when I awakened whether or not they were the figment of my fantasy or whether I had really heard them. That the terror of them had brought me awake, I realized when I started up on the park bench, upon which I had dropped in fatigue after my long, walk and where I unwittingly had gone to sleep.

My first impulse was to start from my seat, rush past the group of bushes which sheltered it, and look for the woman whose voice even when imagined had such power to terrorize me. Two considerations held me back from my purpose. One was the fear of being ridiculous which is always with me. I knew that my hair and my clothing were rumpled from my involuntary nap, and my common sense told me that I probably had confused my dreams of Grace Draper's voice with the actual sound of some unknown feminine stroller through the park who had happened to pass my hidden seat just as I had been dreaming of my husband's former studio model. To rush out and confront this hypothetical stranger would be the height of absurdity.

On the other hand, I admitted to myself that if that most fantastic hypothesis, the actual presence of Grace Draper near me, were true, then the last thing in the world I wanted was to confront her. If she were in ignorance of my proximity, I certainly did not wish to be the person to enlighten her.

It was therefore fully five minutes before, having settled my dress and smoothed my hair, I ventured to emerge from my secluded seat, to find on one not at all within my vision. With a little sigh of relief that my dreams were but fantasies after all, I resumed my walk toward our apartment.

My way led along the lower path partly screened by trees, and when I had come within sight of the apartment, I saw Mary Harrison trip down the steps and cross the Drive to the parkway, along which it was her custom to take a morning walk. "Run," however, would have been the better word to describe the morning exercise in which I guessed she let out some of the boredom which unconsciously to herself was beginning to be her portion at the rigid Vertizen routine of work.

I am extremely fond of Dicky's niece, and I quickened my steps, with the idea of meeting her. But before I had come within her vision, I saw a familiar figure emerging from a path diagonally cressing hers. It was the tall, limping figure of Mrs. Baker, the woman upon the fourth floor of the apartment building, whose curiosity concerning our affairs had so annoyed me, and beneath whose guttural voice and seamed lineaments, I sometimes had fancied there was an elusive maddening trace of a personality I once had known.

If she continued upon the path upon which she was now walking she would reach Mary within the next few seconds. I had no desire to speak to her; but, on the other hand, I instinctively had the feeling that I must protect Mary against the woman's overwhelming curiosity. Grateful for the shelter of the bushes which effectively screened me from the eyes of both my curious neighbor and my husband's niece, while giving me an excellent opportunity of viewing their encounter, I hurried along my own sheltered path until I had reached a point where I could both see and hear their meeting.

Somewhat to my surprise, however, Mrs. Baker passed Mary with no word or look. The thought came to me that her step was more halting than ever. Even as I made the mental comment she swayed, gave a little gasping cry and fell apparently swooning almost at Mary's feet.

STEAM SHOVEL ENGINEER GETS HIMSELF OUT OF A DEEP HOLE

ROY SAUBLE

Roy Sauble had stomach and nerve troubles and his health had been bad for so long that at last he found himself traveling along in a rut—he was in a hole and he couldn't get out of it.

Eventually he took Tepee Herb Tonic and now he says, it is the only remedy that could have restored his health.

Mr. Sauble is a steam shovel engineer. He lives at 2101 W. Twenty-Fifth street, Cleveland. He says:

"My stomach was in a dreadful condition. I had indigestion after every meal. No matter how careful I was about my eating I couldn't get away from sour risings, heartburn and stuffy, bloated feelings.

"You can't tell me that stomach trouble doesn't make a man nervous, for I was never nervous before I had it. Hardly a day passed in which I did not have a severe headache.

"I began to use Tepee Herb Tonic and today I feel good. I have a good appetite and no matter what I eat I do not have those attacks of heartburn indigestion and sour risings. My nerves are better and when I go to bed I am able to sleep soundly.

"I do not have headaches, either. Another thing about Tepee Herb Tonic is the way it regulates the bowels.

"Before I took this medicine I was very constipated but Tepee Herb Tonic in the way it regulates has entirely relieved me of all the ailment."

Tepee Herb Tonic is an old Indian Medicine made exclusively from roots, herbs, barks and plants. There is nothing harmful, poisonous or habit forming in its compositions. Try it if you don't feel well. You may confidently expect to feel better soon.

Tepee Herb Tonic may be had in Marion at Bradley's, Henney & Cooper's, Wm. M. Stamp, Bartlett's and all drug stores; Richwood, H. D. Kyle. —Adv.

WESLEYAN TO TRAIN TEACHERS AT ASHLEY HIGH

State To Re-Equip Building for Opening of Program the Second Semester

Ashley, Sept. 30—Plans were started Tuesday night for the conversion of the Ashley School into a teacher training department of Ohio Wesleyan. Those present at the meeting were: C. B. Ulrey, supervisor of teacher training from the State Department of Education, Columbus, Dr. A. R. Mead, of Ohio Wesleyan, Dr. H. W. Nutt, of Ohio Wesleyan, County Superintendent H. T. Main, Delaware, Ashley board of education, Harry Wyant, C. J. Kiefer, Clyde Cole, E. R. Sperry, Marion Westbrook, Supt. R. B. Warner and the high school teachers, Miss Florence Leas, Stewart Powers, Mrs. Samuel McDowell and Miss Marie Jacoby.

Great possibilities are in store for Ashley, since these men, interested in the training of teachers, are anxious to equip the Ashley school in a first class condition with the best of equipment, paid for by the state.

There will be four practice teachers under the supervision of each of the four high school teachers during the second semester. Previous to that time the teachers will be qualified for teacher training and the board of education will re-equip the building in preparation for the program.

Ashley is fortunate in having the chance to cooperate with Ohio Wesleyan and the State Department of Education in the training of teachers.

Love of money is the root of most treason.

LAD STRUCK BY AUTO WHILE GOING TO SCHOOL

Russell Stroble, 9, Expected To Recover from Injuries; Findlay Man Driving Car

Kenton, Sept. 30—Russell Stroble, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Stroble, south of Kenton, is today recovering from injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile driven by H. B. Carpenter of Findlay while enroute to school. His head and body were cut and bruised.

Although unconscious for several hours attending physicians say his injures will not prove fatal.

Young Stroble had ridden as far as Enterprise school, near his home, in his brother's car. As he alighted and started across the highway, the Findlay car hit him. The six occupants of the machine assisted in carrying the lad into the school and ministered first aid until a physician arrived.

According to reports the Findlay man and his companions were enroute to Bellefontaine, where they intended catching a train for a business trip through the West.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS AT MARYSVILLE TODAY

Reunion Will Probably Be Last Because of Thinning Ranks

Marysville, Sept. 30—Marysville is host today to veterans of the Civil War of the 32nd, 134th, 124st, 31st, 136th, 17th, 31th, 86th, 88th and 66th. Because of the thinning ranks of these regiments it will likely be the last reunion to be held in this city.

Early indications, because of the bad weather conditions were that the attendance would not be as large as expected. The average attendance is not thought to be over four for each regiment.

Headquarters are at the Congregational Church with a fine dinner menu awaiting the soldiers at the parlors of the M. E. Church. Another interesting trip will be a trip to the Ohio Reformatory for Women.

Why, I can eat the heartiest kind of a meal, and the constipation is all gone and all that sluggish, tired feeling has disappeared. I'm just brimful of new life and energy and can go about my day's work feeling fresh and fit, and I'll tell the world Plant Juice is what fixed me up."

800 IN PAGEANT 'INDEPENDENCE' AT NIGHT FAIR

Only Two Events on Racing Card Started; One Is Finished

Bucyrus, Sept. 30—A crowd estimated by fair officials at between 4,000 and 5,000 persons yesterday witnessed the Historical parade on the race track held in connection with Crawford County's celebration of its centennial.

Stretching around the speed oval two and one-half times, the 78 descriptive and historical floats and the nearly 100 industrial floats from every section of Crawford County presented a spectacle to the throng of spectators that never before had been likened in the history of the community.

Slight variation was noticed in the attendance figures between the day and night exposition, when the historical pageant, "Independence" with a cast of 800 people was presented under the direction of the Irving O. Plain producing company. The feature of the pageant was the closing scene which depicted the Battle of Bunker Hill, enacted by members of the Galion and Bucyrus American Legion Posts.

Cool weather served to lower attendance figures in the opinion of those connected with the fair and the pageant. It was necessary for many of those taking part in the night feature to wear heavy coats over their costumes, thus marring to some degree the prettier effects.

Winners in the float parade were announced today by the committee of judges as follows: first prize, $25, "The Human Flag," 100 women of Cranberry township; second prize, $15, "Colonel Crawford and his followers," Bucyrus township, Wesley Beal taking the part of Colonel Crawford; third prize, $10, "Goddess of Liberty," Liberty township.

Those acting as judges were: Jesse H. Mason, Marion; Charles Hartz, Upper Sandusky, L. M. Koffman, Attica.

Only two races of the three scheduled were run off during the afternoon, only one of the events being finished. Following is the summary:

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Kenton, Sept. 30—Playing unusually good ball, the New York Central recreation ball club last evening defeated the Postoffice team, 2 to 0, in the final game of the "Little World Series," thereby annexing the city championship in recreational ball.

In earlier games the past week each contesting club won and lost a game apiece. The "rubber" Wednesday was witnessed by more than 500 fans.

The shopmen's victory was in a large measure due to the air tight pitching of Henry Lowmiller, former N. Y. C. star, and now a prominent figure in Marion athletics. During the entire game he allowed but two hits, both of these being secured by James McCullough, Hardin County treasurer. Edgar Morrison, pitching for the postal men, issued a series of safe bingles but the air tight support he received prevented the winners from enlarging their final count. The only two counters in the game were mad in the opening frame, the remaining innings bein scoreless.

ADA EXPECTED TO TEST MARYSVILLE HIGH TEAM

Union County Boys Work Hard Preparing for Invasion of College Town Squad

Marysville, Sept. 30—Local football fans will be offered a real treat Friday when the Marysville High School eleven will stack up against a classy outfit from the Ada High School. From reports current here the visitors will bring a good squad that will test the ability of Coach Kingsmore's men to the maximum.

Stiff practice has been held on the local field in spite of the unfavorable weather. New plays have been completed and much stress given to the line, whose terrific onslaught was in a large measure responsible for the victory over Delaware last week. "Big John" Geissler, one of last year's stars, will take a regular position with the locals.

This is the first at home game for Marysville and various schemes for having a record attendance are being offered. A number of "pep" meetings are scheduled for the latter part of the week. However much stress is being laid to prevent "overconfidence" among the members of the team.

BY CHUCK HARRISON

Toasting ourselves at the fireplace last night we read where at only one place in England they continue the play of lawn billiards which calls for balls weighing nine pounds each and cues similar to poles with iron rings at one end. We predict that similar equipment will be adopted here soon for the beginners.

• • •

Billiard parlors in this city are well equipped and play is fairly keen. Gambling has been eliminated. With the approach of the indoor season it is likely that some Turkey Day tournaments wil be started soon. It has been some time since any of the stars in the billiard world appeared here and it is also hoped that some special attractions will be scheduled.

• • •

Bowling has started here with increased interest. Forty women representing the Business Women's Club at the Y. M. C. A. started their season last night with many good scores. Six teams rolled and many reserves were not called upon the first night. We have been informed that one of the women's teams here last year was just a little better than the best of the men's teams. How do you account for that? Are the women going to dominate in all sports?

• • •

Woman's power of resistance to cold in the water compared with that of man was strikingly illustrated in a long-distance swimming race held recently in England. Thirty-nine men and twelve women started over the mile and a half course. Only nine men completed the distance, while all the women competitors finished quite fresh.

• • •

Fifty years ago a football team was not an "eleven," since it took 20 men to make up a team in those days. Just think what the fans were getting for their money then.

• • •

One of the wonders of the National League season has been the problem of how a team like the Boston Braves can clean up the three leading teams of the league with perfect ease and yet has never been able to get above seventh place all season.

• • •

The gloves worn by Dempsey and Tunney cost exactly $14.98 a pair. Possibly that is one of the reasons for the big expense account. Those boys were well equipped. They wore $8 shoes and trunks of some kind that probably cost in the neighborhood of 99 cents. Oh! Yes, and Dempsey's movie nose cost about $7,407.32. That's the difference.

• • •

More than 2,000 football games are being played on American college gridirons this season. Who said football is not popular?

• • •

When Ohio State eleven meets Columbia at the Polo Grounds on Oct. 16 it will have the distinction of being the first Big Ten Conference football team that ever has displayed its wares in New York City.

• • •

Confidentially speaking there is just one thing we think more ungentlemanly than murder. It is simply betraying a man's confidence.

You know last night an United States Army officer in the Guard Detachment headquarters told the writer that the local company was going to have another basketball team this year—and very confidentially he hinted some inside dope. Yes, now take it easy and don't tell a soul. Those are the words that made the film "Across the Pacific" playing early this week at the Marion.

Well the officer says "We are going to have a real team this year. We are getting seven new men as soon as the same number receive their discharges. And, we hope they are all basketball players."

• • •

Some of Marion County's hunters are finding their eyes and setting their sights at the Crystal Way Gun Club, near Crystal Lake Park, where the weekly shoot Saturday will be for some attractive poultry.

• • •

The Saturday Evening Post salesman just arrived from New York with his usualy supply of Saturday editions on Thursday. When the writer refused to buy—stating that he had one coming from last week's 10 cent deposit, the salesman turned to the boss and said: "Do you permit cussin' in this here place?" Lunch time.

Stunned by Death Blow Rogers Will Enter Game Saturday Against Yanks

"Don't Come, Rogers, No Matter What Happens; Stay in New York for the Opening Game of the World's Series and Win"—Mother

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Torn with anguish by the death of his mother, but unable to disregard her dying wish, Rogers Hornsby will lead his fighting St. Louis Cardinals against the Yankees in the opening game of the world series here Saturday.

Stunned by grief, the brilliant young manager walked the streets with his wife for hours last night after receiving word from Austin, Texas, that his mother had died.

What finally influenced him to stay here for the first two games of the series was his mother's last message, which he received over the telephone from relatives. It was:

In another message to Hornsby's wife, the dying woman requested her to stay with Rogers. Hornsby had almost decided to leave for Texas with his wife when he received the news of his mother's death.

"As it was my mother's dying request that I remain with my team until after the series is over, I have decided to carry out her wishes, hard as this will be to me," Hornsby said in making his decision to stay here.

He said his mother's remains would be kept for a funeral after the series is finished.

Hornsby is expected to practice with the Cardinals today. He did not appear on the field yesterday.

MOTHER DIES AFTER TRIUMPH OF SON

Austin Texas, Sept. 30—Mrs. M. D. Hornsby died here yesterday afternoon, happy in the knowledge that her son, Rogers Hornsby, had carried his St. Louis Cardinals to a National League pennant. Her hope that she might be spared long enough to see her son in the triumph of world's series play, however, remained unfilled.

With the true devotion of a mother, Mrs. Hornsby insisted during her critical illness that Rogers remain in New York to prepare his team for the opening game of the series Saturday.

The Cardinal manager had made tentative arrangements to bring his mother to St. Louis for the series games played there, but a week ago it became evident her condition was too serious for her to undergo the trip. Mrs. Hornsby repeatedly expressed the hope that she might live until the conclusion of the series. She was confident that St. Louis would win.

For 11 years she had been an invalid, and much of the time was spent in bed.

Left a widow many years ago with five young children, she reared all to maturity. About four years ago, however, one of her sons was shot to death in a restaurant at Ft. Worth, Texas, and two years ago another died after an operation for appendicitis. The loss of these sons contributed to her decline.

NAVY USES NEW HUDDLE SYSTEM

Coach Bill Ingram Hopes To Improve Team's Play

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 30—An original variation of the huddle system will feature the Navy football team's playing this year. Coach Bill Ingram, the Middies' new mentor, has brought with him a system that will eliminate a fault of last year—that the quarterback's signals were not heard by the entire eleven.

The play starts with the grouping of the players around the quarterback. The signals are whispered, the quarterback yells "step" and the gridders move into their places. Then the ball is snapped back and the plunge or forward pass is put into action.

This manner of calling signals consumes a little more time than the open style, but it is estimated only about 20 to 30 seconds are consumed from play time.

Coach Ingram predicts a successful year for the Sailors. Much husky material is on hand and several of the regulars of last season can be relied upon to again come through this year. The Navy has in mind one of the worst defeats of its teams, administered by Bennie Friedman's Wolverines last year. Many errors committed in that game will be eliminated through special concentration on various styles of play. The Middies will profit by the teachings when they encounter the Wolverines in the Stadium at Baltimore on October 30.

Allan Shapley and Tom Hamilton are ready for backfield berths again. Capt. Wickhorst, Born, Cross, Taylor, Hartwek, Caldwell, Williamson, Osborne, Ransford, Olsen and others, experienced linesmen, can be called upon to play important positions. Lloyd, a 210-pound man, is a likely candidate for one of the end positions. In spite of his huge bulk, Lloyd is said to have negotiated 100 yards in 10 seconds. C. H. Williamson is being considered for the other end position.

Williamson and Lloyd, ends; Captain Wickorst and A. M. Aichel, tackles; A. S. Born and J. H. Cross, guards; H. L. Warren, center; M. E. Goudge, quarterback; R. F. Ransford and Allan Shapley, halfbacks, and T. Hamilton, fullback.

Much interest in the Navy team has centered in Baltimore and Washington, due to an announcement by Navy officials that at least three games would be played in the Baltimore Stadium if enough enthusiasm were aroused.

If Baltimore shows interest in the Michigan game, Commander Ingram will try to bring to that city teams like Notre Dame and other strong Western elevens.

New York, Sept. 30—The final standing of the home run hitters reveals that both the Yankees and the Cardinals are well represented in the list of leading sluggers. The leaders are: American League—Ruth, New York, 47; Simmons, Philadelphia, 19; Lazerri, New York, 18; Goslin, Washington, 17; Williams, St. Louis, 17; Gehrig, New York, 16; Manush, Detroit, 14; Meusel, New York, 12.

National League—Wilson, Chicago, 21; Bottomley, St. Louis, 19; Williams, Philadelphia, 18; Bell, St. Louis, 17; Southworth St. Louis, 16; Kelly, New York 13; Hornsby, St. Louis, 11.

CHICAGO TEAMS IN CITY SERIES

Cubs Take First Game, 6 to 0, From White Sox

Chicago, Sept. 30—Chicago's "civil war" shifted to the south side today where at Comiskey Park the White Sox will engage the National League Cubs in the second game of the city series.

Eddie Collins' gunners will seek to retrieve honors lost at Cubs' north side park yesterday when they bowed to the twisters of Charley Root, 6 to 0.

Games will be played, alternating between the parks, until one team has won four games. Bush and Thurston are slated to pitch today's pastime.

PROFESSIONALS FIND PLACE IN FOOTBALL WORLD

Edwards with $25,000 Yearly Salary Leads Big Men

The present season will determine the fate of professional football. The pro game has been put on as firm a foundation as could be devised. For the first time in the struggle to make it generally popular there are big influential men of high caliber behind the different angles of it.

"Big Bill" Edwards, college grid hero, is head of the National League, the new and more formidable organization, at a salary of $25,000 a year. The men backing the individual teams have the money and the sportsmanship to "see it through."

The rule adopted by that league prohibiting college stars from joining a league team until their college studies are ended has made the game much more popular with the college coterie.

The pro teams are drawing the real stars of the college ranks, not simply the "money players" who live on football.

Now, but one thing remains to be proved. That is whether or not the game, rightly conducted, will have the attraction for the fans necessary to float it from a financial standpoint.

The cost of equipment, salaries, transportation, hotels, etc., is terrific, considering that the teams play but a few games each season. The attendance must be great to reimburse the home and road teams.

I happened to see the first appearance of "Red" Grange's New York Yankee team. Twenty-two thousand persons paid admission to see the game. It was a much different type of crowd, however. There was a band. It played popular airs with which the crowd sort of ambled along, but there was no concerted effort to get up any enthusiasm while the teams limbered up. The cheering section was an extemporaneous affair led by a lusty cheer leader.

Between halves deadly silence reigned. And toward the end of the game, when Grange's team seemed beaten, the crowd started ambling toward home.

Now that is typical of baseball crowds—professional baseball. These same fans come back the next day to see the teams in action.

It may be, however, that constant patronage and an earnest effort on the part of the promoters to instill a loyal spirit in the local rooters will build up more of a "rah, rah," atmosphere.

As for the football itself. The game was cleanly played. There was nothing lacking in the fighting spirit of the players and their desire to win. The public is going to see some great football—if it cares to see football without the usual background.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

New York—Bill Richards, of Westbury, Conn., won decision from Johnny Pilkington, of New York, six rounds. Harry Sanky, of England, knocked out Johnny Potter, of New York, in second round.

Hornsby Will be Changed Man and May Lead Cards to Victory Over Yankees

Uncertainty Is Removed from Manager's Life and Even Though He Has No Nerves He Should Be Inspired for Sake of Team Mates, Says Walsh

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Pagliacci made them laugh though the smirk of his lips was false and the heart within him died. But they laughed.

That, I think, will tell the story of the 1926 world series between the Yankees of New York and the Cardinals of St. Louis.

Grim fate took a hand in the proceedings yesterday with the announcement that Mrs. M. D. Hornsby had died in Austin, Texas, and the news simple and tragic, probably decided the destiny of an event of national importance. The writer believes that the death of Mrs. Hornsby, mother of the Cardinal manager, made certain what probably was an impending St. Louis victory.

Every indication pointed toward it in the first place, but the Cards now will go in there with psychology in their favor and a ball club so endowed will come go wrong in a world series.

The old Athletics were told the Cubs were unbeatable. They went in there to do the gamels. They didn't; they bowed bearing down in the final games of 1925 and won. The Boston Braves were lashed into a lather over an alleged altercation between Stalling and Connie Mack. They went out to avenge a fancied slight and won four straight. The Washington Senators fought to redeem the failure of Walter Johnson and the first thing they knew they had the title on their hands. Pittsburgh found the Senators kidding around and not bearing down in the final games of 1925 and the last rush of the Pirates was too much for any club to sustain. They

JUDGE LANDIS IS GETTING BUSY

Attends Meeting with Series Umpires and Draft Drawing

New York, Sept. 30—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, New York for the world series will meet tomorrow with four who will officiate at the series talking with the umpires [illegible] attend the draft drawing of league players.

Judge Landis said the question of permitting the use of a resin bag by pitchers, upon which the American and National Leagues have disagreed, would be ironed out at the meeting of umpires. This meeting also will be attended by representatives of the contending club.

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, said today that applications for reserved seats had climbed 17,000 over the available seating capacity and that all late applications would be returned. There are now left 18,000 general admission seats in the grandstand and 20,000 such seats in the bleachers. There are 25,000 reserved seats in the Yankee Stadium.

And "child culture" might have utterly spoiled Abe Lincoln. For geometry there are no rules.

DEMPSEY TO CONTINUE HIS RING CAREER

New York, Sept. 30—It was reported today that a formal announcement soon will be forthcoming from the headquarters of Jack Dempsey that the former heavyweight champion will continue his ring career in the hope of getting a return bout with Gene Tunney.

This declaration followed a conference yesterday between Dempsey and Tex Rickard, in which the promoter was said to have urged Jack to stay in the ring.

It also was said that he offered Dempsey a proposition whereby he would make his next appearance in Madison Square Garden as the opponent of the winner of a heavyweight elimination series. Harry Wills, negro challenger, is not likely to appear in the series, as it was said that a Dempsey-Wills match was too big for an indoor ...

"As a championship fight, I would not touch it," Rickard declared today. "But merely as an elimination contest, I don't think it would occasion much opposition."

However, both Dempsey and Rickard claims to be incensed at Wills for his interference with their recent plans.

PENNSYLVANIA CELEBRATES

This is the golden jubilee year for football at the University of Pennsylvania. It was in 1876 that Pennsylvania started its gridiron history with three games. Princeton winning twice and All Philadelphia losing in the only other contest played that year. In the half century Pennsylvania has played 328 games in all, with opponents from coast to coast and from New England to Georgia.

CARDINAL HURLERS ARE RELIED UPON BY FANS

THERE isn't a doubt but what the St. Louis Cardinals, first team of their town to break into a world's series, present a much more formidable pitching staff than the New York Yankees.

The only question is whether or not it is powerful enough to overcome the tremendous leverage in hitting power the Yankees possess.

Latest official averages give Rhem 21 victories and seven defeats, Haines 13 and four, Sherdel 15 and 12 and Reinhart 10 and five. That's a total of 69 victories and 38 defeats, almost a .667 average in pitching.

The Yankee pitching stars are Pennock, Braxton, Ruether and Hoyt. Between them they have accounted for 56 victories and 33 defeats, not as good a percentage. Huggins has depended on Jones, Shawkey and others for the other victories aided by the big stick.

Pennock has won 21 and lost 12 in the games needed to win the flag. Ruether's work for the season netted 14 and eight, Hoyt's 15 and 12 and Braxton relief hurler won six and lost one.

Hornsby puzzled every team in the National League with a startling change of pace. Rhem has a beautiful fast ball. Old Bill Sherdel has the slowest slow ball a batter ever looked at. Those he started last spring are just crossing the plate. He has a beautiful hook on them, too. Reinhart mixes a cross fire delivery with a good fast ball. Haines is a curve ball artist.

It remains to be seen what Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel, Tony Lazzeri, Lou Gehrig and those other ball murderers do to the Cards in the number of games the series goes. But the Cardinal pitching stopped the National League batters.

HOTEL RATES NO MORE FOR GAME

Army-Navy Football Fans Will Receive Chicago Welcome

Chicago, Sept. 30—There will be no increase of rates for hotel rooms stopping in Chicago for the Army-Navy football game on Soldier Field, November 27, it has been officially announced.

An agreement has been reached by the leading hotels to help support the city's best civic standards by maintaining the old rates, instead of boosting prices for the thousands who will pack the loop hotels and the leading ones in outlying districts.

"Regular room prices will prevail," John Burke, manager of the Congress Hotel, and president of the Hotel Association of Chicago says.

This stand of the hotels followed efforts by Mayor Dever and others, including President William R. Dawes of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Congressman Fred Britten through whose special efforts the game was brought here—to save Chicago from the stigma that fell upon other cities where the national classic had been played.

Complaints of overcharging invariably followed the game in most of the cities where it has been played.

Columbus Champions are Bringing Their Best Men Sunday to Meet Athletics

Manager Bacon Refuses To Load Up and Relies Upon Regulars To Come Through; Reese or Main Will Start; Buckland in Uniform, Too

The Morrey Jewelers of Columbus, who meet the Marion Athletics at Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon at 2:30 have played three seasons in the Capital City League, one of the fastest semi-pro organizations of the Central Ohio Federation of Baseball Clubs. In the three years, the Morreys have won two pennants and the other year they were in a three cornered tie for the lead in the circuit.

They have beaten the best teams around Columbus, as well as some of the fast road teams that have invaded the capital in the last three years. They were leading West Jefferson by one run in the elimination series for the Federation title, when one of the West Jefferson players hit a three bagger with two on. They have challenged their victors to a return game, which will probably be played Sunday, Oct. 10.

Manager Francis Bacon of the local team thinks that the Morreys are just a little better than any team that has played here this summer, and anticipates a tough game Sunday. He does not intend to make any radical changes in the Marion lineup, however. A new outfielder may be seen in the game, but either Reese or Main will be on the slab for Marion. Some fans have asked Bacon to strengthen for this game, but he has confidence in his regular lineup. He does intend, however, to bring in some big timers for the tournament the 10th.

Tournament Oct. 10

This tournament will see four teams in action that will be comprised in great part of players from the big leagues and the fast minor leagues. Several teams have made application for a chance to take part in the tournament, but only those teams are being considered which will be able to show players whose reputations are well known to fans.

Present plans call for a galaxy of stars such as has never been seen in Marion. It is the hope of the Marion management to close the season in a blaze of glory. The team which has represented this city this season has given local fans an excellent brand of ball, and it is the intention to give those who have shown their loyalty by supporting the team all season a chance to look over the stars of the "big time" and compare them with the local favorites.

Buck May Be Back

It is hoped that Buckland will be in shape to play Sunday. He was in uniform last Sunday and scored a run when he took Brashear's place on the path, but his physician advised against his playing a full game. He is anxious to get back in the lineup, but will wait for final word from the doctor. Buck is considering an offer to play league ball next summer and does not want to finish the season on the bench.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT ROGERS HORNSBY STARTS ON PAGE 12

had phychology batting in tenth position and the old man never fails.

For the same reason they laughed at Pagliacci. He cared not at all whether they laughed or cried and naturally the rest was easy. I think Rogers Hornsby will play great ball in the world series.

The writer saw him enter the lobby of the Hotel Alamac last night, white faced and distrait, to receive the news he waited for, yet dreaded.

I think Hornsby will be a better man for knowing that the end has come. Uncertainty is a cancer that gnaws the vitals and makes of the knees a study in rubberized gymnastics. Uncertainty has ceased for Hornsby. A firm believer in psychology, the writer looks for a new Hornsby to appear in the Yankee Stadium for the first game on Saturday, a man who knows the iron had entered his soul. They say Hornsby has no nerves. If that is true it is probable that Hornsby will be an inspired ball player for this particular series.

As for the rest of the Cards, what else can they do but play their fool heads off for a leader so recently bereaved?

With money in one hand and honor in the other, they should be able to laugh off anything. Pagliacci did it.

Tickets to the World Series this year range in price from $1.10 to $6.60, including tax.

EIGHT WOMEN GOLFERS STILL IN TOURNEY

Virginia Wilson, Chicago Star, Meets Champion Glenna Collett

Merion Cricket Club, South Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 30—Eight of the nation's finest women golfers remained in the national championship today to contest the round before the semi-finals.

Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, the champion, met Miss Virginia Wilson, Chicago, rated as the most promising of the younger players from the Chicago district. Miss Edith Cummings, Chicago, met Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, of Philadelphia, in the other match in the upper half of the draw.

In the lower half Mrs. Wright D. Goss former metropolitan champion, played Mrs. Norman Toerge, of New York, and Mrs. J. L. Anderson, New York, played Mrs. Cortlandt Smith.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair — that final touch to good dress both in busine: and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy lustrous hair.—Adv.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS CONVENTION REPORTS

Organization Plans To Attend Delaware Meeting in Two Weeks

Kiwanis state convention reports were made today by Delegates President A. W. Kette, State Trustee E. H. Cowan and Chairman George Whysall of the state credentials committee at the weekly luncheon of the Marion Club held at Harding Hotel. Forty-eight members were reported in attendance. The only guest, Harry Newburg, of New York City, was announced the winner of a book "The Constitution of the United States," the club's silent boost.

Local Kiwanians are planning to attend the Delaware Club meeting two weeks from tonight, Oct. 14. All members are expected to attend the first club meeting this season.

J. C. Woods gave a brief report of his vacation trip over the mountains.

Attorney Hector S. Young in giving his report of the Dempsey-Tunney fight said "I am glad I saw the fight and the best man will."

Membership Drive

Announcement was made that a membership campaign will be launched in the near future. Membership committeemen held a meeting today following the luncheon.

Trustee E. H. Cowan explained the convention cost Columbus about $5,000 this year and that he thought it would be sometime before Marion would be able to entertain a state meeting. At Columbus this year 1,200 were served in one room and 300 in an adjoining room all at one time. He concluded his report by stating that the convention introduced the idea of spreading Kiwanis work into all English speaking countries.

Marion district was represented by 251 delegates this year according to Credential Chairman George Whysall. The previous year only 146 delegates voted at the Dayton meeting.

SOLARIO LOSER

London, Sept. 30—A racing sensation was provided at Newmarket today when Sir John Rutherford's Solario, a 10-100 favorite, was defeated by Sir Abe Bailey's Foxlaw, a rank outsider, quoted at 20-1. Sir John recently refused the Aga Kahn's offer of $500,000 for Solario.

FILES BUS APPLICATION

E. M. King of this city, driver of a Marion-Lima bus, has applied with the Public Utilities Commission for permission to operate a bus line between Lima and Delphos, according to word received here today.

MARKET FIRM DESPITE INCREASED LOAN RATE

New York, Sept. 30—The spectre of a six per cent call loan rate, returning to the stock market today for the first time since January, failed to cause the unsettlement and confusion in stocks which had been generally predicted in bearish quarters. Stocks thrown on the market following the marking up of the call rate around the noon period were quickly snapped up, after which the whole market exhibited a strong tone.

The market was extremely irregular in the forenoon, though most of the price changes were downward. Bearish professionals, relying on the high call rate and the uneasiness with respect to the reserve bank rediscount rate to aid them in their campaign for lower prices, continued to offer stocks quite freely. With the exception of the railroad stocks and a few of the outstanding market favorites and specialties, stocks sought the lower price levels under a general withdrawal of buying demand. The advance in call money rates to six per cent was not unexpected.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Peaches selling at $1.75 a bushel were still the outstanding fruit in Marion markets today. Hundreds of Marion shoppers are getting in their supply of peaches for canning this week, according to the rapid decrease in number of bushels for sale.

Another shipment of the fruit is expected in local provision houses Friday morning. The same price will probably be attached to the new arrivals.

Friday will herald the last large shipment of peaches into Marion, it is believed, although smaller quantities and a plentiful supply will be kept on hand for several weeks.

Plums on Market

Plums of various varieties were prominent in a few markets today. Demand for this fruit is on the increase. Plums were selling for 15 cents a basket.

Red mangoes were scarce in Marion today while only a few green ones were seen on display. Red mangoes were retailing at 30 cents a dozen while the green variety continued at 20 cents.

No change was recorded in the price of green Lima beans, selling at 25 cents a pint or 50 cents a quart. Green string beans today sold for 10 cents a pound.

Meats and provisions remained steady in price today. Smoked ham sold at 33 cents while boiled ham retailed at 68 cents a pound. Pork chops ranged from 30 to 35 cents a pound. Lard today sold at 17 cents a pound.

Oysters ranged from 60 to 65 cents a quart in price, although few were seen in local markets today.

PARENTS REVEAL THEY GOT THREATENING NOTE

Officials Certain That Three-Year-Old Orwell Girl Was Kidnaped

Orwell, Sept. 30—Belief that Isabel Zendarski, 3, was kidnaped from the home of her parents here more than a week ago by an enemy of her father, was given credence today when it became known that the parent recently had received a threatening letter.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zendarski, of Warren, Ohio, revealed that their son had received the letter July 4 from a man with whom he had quarreled over a debt. It was admitted by the grandparents that this missive "may have" involved the child.

Frank Knurick, an uncle of Isabel, has told Sheriff Hamnum that he was confined with illness to the room adjoining that of the girl the night she disappeared. He declared that the only noise he heard was that of a dog barking.

Two other Zendarski children, who slept in the room with Isabel, previously declared that a "big black man" had come to their room in the night and taken Isabel.

GOITER EXPERT FINISHES SURVEY IN SCHOOLS HERE

Examinations Conducted by Dr. L. P. Kimball, Cleveland, Among Chiden

The goiter survey in county schools was completed yesterday by Dr. L. P. Kimball, of Cleveland, and Health Commissioner N. Sifritt.

Cards, bearing the record of each student in regard to goiter affliction, are now in the hands of Mrs. Rae Bishop, clerk in the office of the health commissioner, and the report of each boy and girl for this year will be compared with the record taken last year at this time.

The complete check-up of conditions will be finished within the next few days.

Following the survey last year, many pupils were advised to use iodine salt in the tablet form to combat the growth of goiter. Others were told to use it only at home in their food. A comparison of results will be made.

Dr. Kimball left early today for Cleveland. He will assist in the goiter survey in various surrounding counties during the next few weeks.

Borah, of Idaho, told International News Service that he did not care to be president of the United States; that he would prefer to continue serving the public in his present capacity than to hold the highest office that the people could elect him to.

"The eighteenth amendment must either be enforced or amended," the Idaho senator stated when asked about the success of the Volstead law.

"Eighty per cent of the American people are opposed to the World Court, believing it is child of the League of Nations, but I have not started on this trip to exploit my opinions of this matter," Borah said.

MARION REPUBLICANS RETURN FROM NEWARK

Delegates to State G. O. P. Meeting Report Very Successful Event

The party of Marion County Republicans who attended the state campaign opening in Newark, Wednesday, returned home last night with reports of the event having been one of the most successful every staged by the Ohio G. O. P.

The local delegation made the trip in automobiles, joining with the caravan of more than 100 cars which conveyed several hundred Delaware County people to the meeting. Delaware County sent one of the largest delegations in the state due to the fact that Senator Frank B. Willis, candidate for re-election and one of the principal speakers on yesterday's program, is a resident of that county.

Cooper Speaks

Other outstanding speakers were Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati, nominee for governor, and Fred W. Warner of this city, chairman of the state central committee. Mr. Warner was temporary chairman and gave the opening speech. The Marion man's address was brief but one of the most effective on the program. He referred to America's foreign policy and declared that the "life of a single American boy is worth more than all the boundaries in Europe."

Among the Marion people attending the opening were Mrs. Cora McKeever, Mrs. Laura Foster, Miss Blanche Seitz, B. J. Shelton, chairman of the Marion County Central Committee, and R. E. Prettyman, all of Marion, and Dr. and Mrs. B. D. Osborn of Waldo.

None of his monthly checks has been used.

MEEKER WOMAN'S AUTO IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

An automobile owned by Mrs. Lulu Smith of near Meeker and driven by a relative, Frank Smith, caught fire while stalled on the Harding Highway a short distance west of Marion about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was saved from destruction by Fire Chief McFarland and three men from the Central Station who were summoned and extinguished the flames by the use of chemicals. The top of the car, a Chandler sedan, was destroyed and its wiring considerably damaged before the firemen arrived. The damage totaled about $200.

The Smith machine had been stalled on the highway about half an hour, during which time the driver sought to ascertain the source of trouble, when the fire started. It is believed that the blaze was caused by a spark coming in contact with gasoline.

These New-type Willys-Knight Cars Offer

Seven Major Principles of European Design

Why this new "70" Willys-Knight Six, at $1495 has stepped into first place in sales in the shortest time on record

Sweeping changes have taken place in automobile standards of design . . . New engineering has revolutionized America's performance standards . . . A 3-minute study of these remarkable facts may save you from buying an obsolete automobile.

WHEN the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was first announced seven months ago, we told you that here was a new-era car . . . modernly designed, modernly engineered . . .

That it would out-perform anything that had ever been built of its size or type or price-class.

We told you that the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was the most modern car in America . . .

That, with its new European-type, small-bore, long-stroke engine, it developed more power per cubic-inch of piston displacement throughout its entire range, than any other car produced in this country.

We told you it was the liveliest car of its price ever built . . .

That it introduced an altogether new standard of activity—instant pickup, an amazing ratio of acceleration . . .

We told you that the new "70" Willys-Knight Six embodied the most advanced engineering practices of both sides of the Atlantic . . . that here was a car engineered on the latest European lines, with a lower gravity center . . .

A car that fairly hugged the ground . . .

With a chassis built for safety . . .

A new conception of quick stopping

We told you about its European-type mechanical 4-wheel brakes—the same type of braking system you find on 97% of foreign cars—that would give you a new conception of quick stopping.

We told you that, with more compact external dimensions, the new "70" Willys-Knight Six provided more inside room than any other car of its wheelbase you had ever driven.

That was 7 months ago.

What happened in the interval?

In the first 30 days, the new "70" Willys-Knight Six was the talk of America.

Speed between 60 and 70 honest miles an hour—more than any sane driver would ever need.

Acceleration 5 to 40 miles in 14⅘ seconds—a new high-water mark of activity.

Brakes that acted as quick as thought—that meant instant-stopping within 52 feet from 45 miles an hour.

Activity. Liveliness. Get-up-and-go. Swiftness. High-gear pulling power. Unheard-of efficiency. Incredible economy in gas and oil . . .

A new order of performance had come . . .

Modern engineering had provided a new sensation for the jaded motoring palate.

Within 60 days, the new "70" Willys-Knight Six had swept this country from one end to the other . . .

It had arrived . . .

It was a proven proposition . . . It had more than lived up to every claim we had made for it.

From the start, the news spread like wildfire.

Sales were tremendous . . . One owner told another . . . The story spread . . .

The new "70" Willys-Knight Six has become the fastest-selling new Six in its price-class.

The famous Knight engine an exclusive feature

The motor of the new "70" Willys-Knight Six is an exclusive feature—the Knight sleeve-valve motor, patented, protected—which other manufacturers would pay millions to get.

No other type of motor can equal its performance.

Repeated tests, over many years, have proven it the most efficient type of automobile motor built.

Better and more powerful than any other motor of its size when new, the Knight sleeve-valve motor of the new "70" Willys-Knight Six grows smoother, more powerful, more efficient with every mile.

The motor of the new "70" Willys-Knight Six has no valves to grind . . .

You never have the annoyance of laying it up for carbon-cleaning . . . It has no springs to weaken . . . Nothing to adjust . . . Nothing to replace or repair . . .

No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out.

Such tremendous advantages as these are creating a record-breaking army of friends for the new "70" Willys-Knight Six . . .

So is the comforting assurance that, for years to come, this new car will hold top place in resale value—because owners will drive it far and away beyond the life of the average car.

Come, see this new and modernly-engineered European-type car. Ride in it. Drive it. You owe it to yourself to find out about it. With the introduction of these new-era engineering principles, it is not sound judgment today to consider the purchase of a less modern automobile.

The 126-inch wheelbase Willys-Knight Great Six—for those who want the finest Introduced early last year, no event of such vital importance to the American car-owner has ever transpired before.

The Willys-Knight Great Six was the first modern Knight-motored car to be perfected in America . . .

The first to embody the most progressive engineering practices of both sides of the world.

It was only a matter of months until the Willys-Knight Great Six became the outstanding leader in the fine car field.

To the American owner this distinguished automobile brought the same type of power-plant used in the most costly cars of Europe. Daimler-Knight of England, Minerva of Belgium, the German Mercedes, Panhard and Voisin of France . . .

In this modern, extremely efficient motor of the Willys-Knight Great Six, you have one of the great features responsible for the sale of more than 38,000 of these superb Sixes in its first 18 months.

A success-record never before equaled in the same length of time, we believe, by any luxury car.

With no carbon troubles . . . no valves to grind . . . the Willys-Knight Great Six cuts up-keep costs in two.

At the same time it completely wipes out the frequent and always inconvenient lay-ups that carbon-cleaning and valve-grinding cause in all cars of poppet-valve design.

$2295 The Willys-Knight Great Six Sedan—first luxury car to offer advanced European engineering practices and American performance standards combined

Women love to drive this car—5 Timken roller bearings in the steering mechanism make the new "70" Willys-Knight Six one of the easiest cars to steer

NOTE THESE MODERN FEATURES

High-torque engines of small bore and long stroke . . . Low gravity center—new-type safety chassis . . . Greater economy in operation . . . Symmetrically designed European-type bodies . . . With more inside room . . . Engineered to meet modern traffic conditions; quick starting, instant stopping . . . Modernly designed to give top place in resale value.

A car that stays out of the repair shop and in your service, day in, day out.

Owner after owner will tell you he has never been without the use of his car, because of engine trouble, for a day or a single hour.

From the first turn of its sleeve-valve motor, the most powerful, most highly efficient, the quietest in operation of all cars of its type or class, the modernly engineered Willys-Knight Great Six—like its companion-car, the new "70" Six, gains in power, gains in efficiency, gains in smooth and silent running with every mile.

A new-type safety chassis engineered to give a lower gravity center—a car that fairly hugs the ground

Thus you need never be disturbed about that weakness common to all less modern cars—their tendency to become noisy, less powerful, less efficient after a few tens of thousands of miles.

With its power-plant lending itself so marvelously to flexible, high-torque development, the Willys-Knight Great Six Sedan has upset all previous ideas of motor-car speed and power.

Super-efficient, it has established standards for smoothness and quietness of operation and records for economy beyond anything ever before achieved.

No other type of car can give you these exclusive advantages . . . no car can offer you such brilliant performance, and downright satisfaction, mile after mile.

It is inevitable that the public should recognize and reward such superiority. Each month we are building more Knight-engined cars than ever were built in any preceding month in history.

First complete line of modern quality cars

These two groups of Willys-Knight cars combined with the famous Overland Six introduced 18 months ago and the new Overland Whippet just announced last month comprise the complete line of Willys-Overland modern quality automobiles.

Each car in the Willys-Overland line is built to the same high standard of quality. A difference in price merely indicates a difference in size and refinements . . . standards of material and workmanship are always the same.

We use the same grades of steel, the same fine quality of craftsmanship in building the Overland Whippet that we use in the famous Willys-Knight Great Six.

Each car offers you the most modern standards of European design . . . plus a degree of superlative performance such as you've never known before.

Remember, materials are a matter of specification. But engineering is a matter of brains.

Hence, if you seek the utmost for your money, look for modern principles of design.

Be sure you buy a car that's up-to-date. A car built to meet the new American performance standards.

Perfection [illegible] in the planning of the [illegible] equipment was attained [illegible] result of officials of the company [illegible] spent a year or more [illegible] inspecting similar places throughout [illegible] and adopting the best and [illegible] most practicable features for their [illegible] In addition to facing on W. Center-st, the building extends through to the rear, where the entrance for cars is located and service facilities, including a filling station, washrack, crank-case service and outside grease rack are available. The Holmes-pl front also has a large plate-glass show window for the display of accessories. The outside service equipment is placed under a 10-foot canopy that extends from the building proper.

Designed For Service

From the beautiful and spacious sales room which faces Center-st to the workshop and storage room upstairs, every feature of the Overland Co. headquarters is designed in order to give full measure of service and convenience to the business and its patrons. The management has been able to build and equip a home that is virtually without a defect as a result of having used the features that have been successful in other automobile agency headquarters and by avoiding the mistakes made by other companies.

Profitable information was obtained, for instance, from inspection of a large garage at Chillicothe, where experience has shown that a building 75 feet in width is undesirable for use by an automobile agency. This is due to the fact that this measurement results in too much waste space in the storing of cars. As a consequence, the Marion-Overland Co. officials decided upon a building 52 feet in width and will use the remaining 23 feet of its lot facing on Center-st as an open air used car market.

Practical Plans

Experience of the Chillicothe company, in addition to expert opinions obtained from other sources, showed the local concern that the most practicable width for a commercial garage and automobile display quarters is 50 feet or a multiple thereof, these measurements providing maximum efficiency in the storage of cars.

Other outstanding features of plans for the local building are based upon the design of a large agency headquarters in Huntington, W. Va., the canopy at the rear is patterned after one at Carey, Ohio, and other places visited during the year's survey provided ideas for equally important steps in the outlining of plans.

One idea that is original with the Marion-Overland Co. officials and which provides their building with a convenience not found in any other automobile plant in Marion, was the installation of a concrete curbing around the entire first and second floors to prevent damage to machines from contact with the walls. This curbing is set in 24 inches from the wall and eliminates what has been one of the most serious sources of trouble in commercial garages.

Marion Architects

White & Hochstetter, Marion architects, designed the Marion-Overland building and supervised the construction but the actual planners were the automobile company officials, the architects doing mainly the technical work necessary in transferring to blue prints the practical ideas gathered and assembled as a result of the year's study.

John H. Moore, junior partner in the firm of White & Hochstetter, has been a close friend of M. L. McDaniel, president and general manager of the Marion-Overland Co., during the last 30 years, and was a valuable aid in shaping up the building plans.

The general contract was awarded on April 10 to the firm of Crock & McPeck and work was started at once. Bids were received from four local contracting firms and three others from Columbus, Delaware and Sandusky.

The Marion-Overland Co., enters its new place of business with the distinction of being the only automobile agency in Marion that has handled the same make of cars during the last 11 years. While others have either changed from one line to another, or have added new makes to their original line, the Overland company has adhered strictly to its first choice and in doing so has built up business of service and sales that compares with the most extensive in this section of Ohio.

Unusual Feature

An unusual feature of the choice of the W. Center-st location is the fact that it was on this same site that the business was launched 11 years ago, the first garage and sales room being in a barn standing at the rear of the lot.

At that time there were only 127 Overland cars in Marion County and it is estimated that now this has been increased to 1,500 or more.

The new Overland building is absolutely fireproof and measures 52 by 182 feet with a 10-foot canopy at the rear. Its fireproofing is guaranteed under the provisions of the Ohio building code, all details of the structure conforming to the provisions of the state regulations. It is fully ventilated throughout as a result of the use of the most modern construction plans and inside ventilating equipment.

The front on West Center-st is an artistic design of mingled seven-color brick and stone, set around large plate glass windows which provide an expansive view of the show room where all of the various Overland models are to be displayed.

Large Show Room

The show-room measures 37 by 52 feet and has a walnut finish tile floor, harmonizing nicely with the natural buff sand finish of walls and ceiling.

A beautifully designed marquee, with trimmings of vari-colored glass, adds greatly to the attractiveness of the front and provides a most inviting entrance to the show-room.

The show-room will be brilliantly illuminated with 20 electric lights of high candle power, including four flood lights and four others of varied colors.

The lighting contract for the entire building was handled by the VanAtta Hardware Co., under the direction of the VanAtta company's chief electrician J. A. McDaniel, brother of M. L. McDaniel, the Overland company's president and general manager.

Luxurious new walnut furniture has been installed in the show-room in conformity with the color scheme of the flooring and woodwork. A built-in cloak room is also decorated to harmonize with the remainder of the design.

Aside from the show-room arrangement, the painting throughout the building is of Barrel-Sunlight finish, which adds to the remarkable effectiveness of the excellent lighting arrangement in all departments.

Rest Room

The remainder of the first floor is a room measuring 145 by 52 feet, provided with space for the company's entire stock of both new and used cars, a thoroughly modern fireproof battery room, an extensive supply of accessories and parts, filling station and inside washrack. It is this room which faces on Holmes-pl., where the various service facilities will operate.

The entire first floor will have a 13-foot ceiling, which is much higher than the average garage and automobile display room. This dimension was decided upon by the Overland company to provide for future developments, which may result in the building being used for some other line of business. The location even now is more valuable than the average automobile agency site, and that its value will increase rapidly is generally conceded by real estate men and others conversant with the trend of property prices. As a consequence, the Overland Co. has prepared for the time when it may be deemed advisable to sell the building to other interests. Officials of the company state, however, that there is no likelihood of such development for a number of years.

Two Ramps

The natural slope of the ground where the building was constructed was of great value for garage purposes. Due to the fact that the lot was four feet higher at the rear than in front, the grade of the driveway used to take cars from the first to the second floor, where the storage room and repair shop are located, is reduced four feet. This results in a lessening in the amount of power needed to drive cars to the second floor and requires the use of less floor space for the driveway.

Heating Plant

The basement is used entirely for the heating plant and storage of fuel. The building will be well heated by a plant installed by the American Radiator Co.

The fuel storage room is exceptionally large and extends out under the sidewalk with a concrete slab covering. In this covering is a 30-inch manhole through which 75 tons of coal may be unloaded from dump wagons or trucks without the necessity of using shovels.

The second story is partitioned so that a space of 61 by 52 feet, at the rear will be used for shop purposes in the repairing and reconditioning of cars. It is constructed to provide ideal working conditions for the repair men, with thorough ventilation through the roof as well as from mechanical ventilating devices. Through the operation of this system, all gases are constantly carried up from the floor level, maintaining purity of air supply for the men. All windows are of the ventilating type.

Oak Work Benches

At the front of the second floor is a room 141 by 52 feet to be used for the storage of both transient and local automobiles. This is one of the largest storage rooms in the city, having capacity for 66 cars.

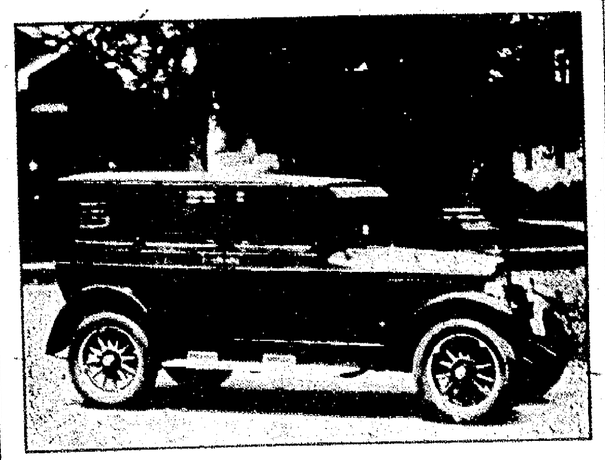
It had been the plan of the Overland company to install a steel sheet ceiling over the entire second floor but this plan was abandoned on advice from Fire Chief T. J. McFarland, who said that an open top space, leaving the roof beams exposed, is the most effectual plan from the standpoint of fire protection. Use of the steel ceiling, the chief says, would add tremendously to the task of his department in case of fire since it would block the fighters' path to the flames.

Brick Work

All brick used in the construction of the building, with the exception of those in the facade, are Ohio State Paving brick. The first floor walls are 12 inches in width and the second floor eight inches.

Officers of the Marion-Overland Co are M. L. McDaniel, president and general manager; William H. Scott, assistant general manager; E. R. Kennedy, treasurer, Walter Bailey, service manager; B. K. Hill, manager of accessories and parts department; Otis Mead, manager of used car department; John H. Clark, E. K. Uhler, F. L. Bush, P. K. McDaniel and M. L. McDaniel, directors.

WILLYS-KNIGHT GREAT SIX



This car, acclaimed the masterpiece of Willys-Knight engineering skill, has found a large sale in Marion. It has all the finer points of the most expensive cars. Its appointments are on a parallel with the best and most expensive cars manufactured in the United States and Europe.

RATED HORSEPOWER OF WHIPPET JUST OVER 15

The rated horse power of the engine in the Whippet is lower than that of any other light car built in America, it being rated at slightly over 15 horsepower. The developed brake horse power is 31, which is the highest brake horse power yet reached by any stock production light era, four cylinder power plant in this country.

This is in accord with the power developments of the European light car motors, which show about a 100 per cent greater developed power than their rated power ability. The average light four cylinder motor in this country shows approximately a 20 per cent increase in developed power over rated power.

NEW TENDENCY

American motor car builders who have carefully studied and tested the Whippet are in accord in the statement that it marks an entirely new tendency in American design.

MARION OVERLAND CO. TO GIVE 24-HOUR SERVICE

Company Will Also Provide Storage Space Large Number of Cars

With the opening of the new Overland Building, W. Center-st, 24-hour storage service will be installed, according to Walter W. Bailey, foreman of the storage and service department of the garage.

Section for storage purposes will be in the front part of the second floor where room for more than 50 cars has been provided. The entrance to the second floor will be made from Holmes-pl on a cement ramp with a 20 per cent grade.

Arrangements have been made by Overland officials so that each car will have a separate stall and will not be placed along the wall in two or three rows deep. One row completely around the section giving plenty of space in the runway, has been planned for by storage manager Bailey. About 7,000 square feet comprise the section.

When the 24-hour storage opens a man will be in charge during the night and day periods. Protection of the cars in this manner has been insured by the company.

Marion Overland Co. One of Ohio's Leading Auto Agencies

Corporation Had Modest Beginning Near New Location

Company, Organized on Jan. 29, 1916, Began Business in Barn at Rear of Lot on Which New Building Is Located

From a modest beginning on Jan 29, 1916, the date of its organization, the Marion Overland Co ha developed into one of the largest and most successful automobile agencies in Ohio. Three factors might be designated as the chief basic elements figuring in the company's steady progress—first, the high quality of its automobiles; second, the aggressive and systematic policy of sales promotion and development maintained at a high point of efficiency at all times, accompanied by high standard service facilities for all users of Overland and Willys-Knight cars; third, a remarkable plan of operation in which all departments of the garage, from office to repair shop, function with absolute unity and harmony, each branch performing its duties with individual efficiency but at the same time always aiming to help maintain a high standard in every other part of the organization.

Chief credit for the development of this remarkable organization is due M. L. McDaniel, president and general manager, who has been identified with the company since its inception in 1916. Mr. McDaniel's hand has been on the control lever at all times and every step taken in the executive management has invariably been subject to his approval. In this work, however, he has had the assistance of capable associates, all of whom are continually striving to conceive new ideas for the improvement and expansion of the business and for giving the company's patrons the best service possible

New System

The system upon which the present departmental organization is based, for instance, was largely worked out by W. H. Scott, assistant general manager, who came here from Columbus following the business depression of 1921 and took charge of the office affairs of the Overland Co. Linking the knowledge gained from previous experience with various ideas of his own, Mr. Scott devised the smooth-working departmental plan which has contributed so largely to the success of the enterprise.

Four Main Heads

These departments come under four main heads—sales and sales promotion, office, service and stock. The theory always borne in mind by Marion Overland Co. officials and employes holds that the organization is thus likened to a four legged stool, each leg being absolutely essential to the stability of the business. By stressing this idea, every department is made to realize and appreciate its importance and to take pride in avoiding any misstep which might cause it to become a weak spot in the structure.

Mr. McDaniel heads the sales department, Mr. Hall is the office manager and supervises the record- of all departments in order to maintain thorough coordination, Walter Bailey has charge of the repair shop and service, and B. K. Hill handles the stock room

Staff Meetings

Staff meetings are held monthly for the purpose of giving all executive heads an opportunity to make suggestions and criticisms regarding any or all departments which they believe will contribute to general improvement No one is permitted to submit a criticism, however, unless he has some substitute proposal which he believes would better conditions. These monthly conferences have proved immensely valuable and have played an important part in the company's progress.

There are daily conferences of the entire sales force with Mr McDaniels presiding and these meetings are also tremendously effective in the development of the business. Nothing is permitted to interfere with this schedule, the idea being that sales promotion is the motive power of the enterprise and must be kept functioning in perfect order. These conferences are limited to 45 minutes and in order to drive the greatest possible amount of good from the allotted time, no comments excepting those relating strictly to sales are given a place in the discussions. Each salesman gives an account of his work of the preceding day and prospects for the day ahead are assigned and surveyed.

Sales Force

The sales force, in addition to Mr. McDaniel, consists of Miller S. Key, Otis Mead, E. B. Bumgarner and S. R. Page.

Prior to his coming to Marion to take charge of the office management of the Overland Co., in 1921, W. H. Scott held a similar position with the Hudson-Essex distributors in Columbus, where he obtained much of the experience which has been of such great value in the systematizing of affairs of the local concern. As a result of the expert handling of the office work by Mr. Scott it is possible for the directors of the company to ascertain the exact profit or loss shown by each department at the close of each month, a convenience which has contributed largely to the general efficiency of the enterprise.

Assisting Mr. Scott in the office routine is Miss Eloise Baer, stenographer and clerk. O. E. Kennedy, president of the Marion County Bank, is treasurer of the company.

Service Department

Walter W. Bailey, head of the service and repair department, has been in the employ of the Overland company eight years and as a consequence is exceptionally well qualified for his important duties. His force of mechanics consists of George W. Keeler, Frank Drake, E. N. Januarv C. E. Rexford and a man who does the janitor work and car washing.

B. K. Hill, in charge of stock, has been with the company for several years. He handles all of the accessories and parts.

The used car market, operated in connection with the sales department, is under the supervision of Otis Mead The used car stock will be displayed on the 23-foot lot adjoining the new Overland building on the east, where ample space is provided for this purpose. Experience of automobile dealers generally has shown than an open air market provides the best facilities for the sale of used cars and for that reason this method has been adopted by the local company.

The Marion Overland Co., was organized January 29, 1916, as a partnership, the members of which were E. B. and B. E. Bumgarner and M. L. McDaniel. The first place of business was in a barn at the rear of the lot where the new home of the present company is located.

Venture Successful

The venture was successful from the beginning, sales by the partners during the first five months amounting to half the total number of Overland cars sold in Marion County up to that time.

In the original organization, B. E. Bumgarner was in charge of the service and repair department and Mr. McDaniel supervised sales, credit and financing.

At the close of the first year, E. B. Bumgarner disposed of his interests to the other partners. B. E. Bumgarner and Mr. McDaniel continued operating the business, moving into the Balu Building, 126 S. Prospect st

On January 1, 1920, the company was incorporated under the laws of Ohio with a capital stock of $50,000, with Bumgarner and McDaniel holding the controling interest. A year later, Mr. Bumgarner sold his holdings to Mr McDaniel.

Lease Garage

In the meantime, a lease was negotiated with the Evans Land & Realty Co. for a building to be constructed at 136 S. Prospect st where the business has ever since been in operation.

The Marion Overland Co has won leadership and distinction among Overland agencies throughout the country on various occasions for sales progress and achievement in other departments Several sales contests conducted from the main offices have resulted in victory for the local organization and stand as red letter events on the records of the company.

Another noteworthy event in the local company's history was the award of first honors given the Marion Overland float in a big automobile and industrial parade at Toledo Each float was intended to be notably representative of the city from which it came, and the Marion entry was given the unanimous vote of the judges. The float was a wooden replica of a Marion Steam Shovel mounted on a truck having been devised through the combined efforts of officials and employes of both the Shovel and Overland companies

An unusual incident in the sales records was the delivery of two Willys-Knight cars from the local agency to Republican National Headquarters here during the Harding presidential campaign. One of these cars was taken to Washington following the campaign and is now used in the federal secret service department.

Numerous other incidents of an unusual nature might be found in a survey of the Marion Overland Co's history and all stand as symbols of the steady and sometimes spectacular progress made by the business and the organization in charge. But the feature to which both officials and employes point with greatest pride is the steady growth of sales and the general satisfaction of hundreds of customers resulting from the marketing of a high-class product and careful attention to the service requirements of these customers.

WILLYS-KNIGHT—MODEL 70

This model, the first European design adopted by American car manufacturers, was shown for the first time at the New-York Auto Show. Sixty thousand saw it in the company's show room at New York City. It has been the most rapidly selling car the company has ever turned out.

PLENTY OF ROOM

An examination of the body dimensions of the Whippet show that it offers more room for the occupants than any other automobile of the light car type and that the body dimensions are equivalent to those of the average American built light six.

A 3-Minute Study of these remarkable facts

NO thinking man need be told that an automobile is too serious a purchase to make without thoughtful investigation.

Simply in fairness to yourself, read the following facts. They will give you an entirely new conception of what to look for in an automobile.

* * * *

18 months ago we announced a revolutionary new-type car . . . the Overland Six that has become world-famous.

It is a low car . . . built close to the ground . . . according to the most modern European safety standards.

Modern engineering—the reason

The Overland Six is new all through—brilliantly engineered as a unit—not an old-fashioned reconstructed chassis.

Remember, the comfort, riding quality, and power of any automobile are first determined on the drafting board.

OVERLAND Six $835 f. o. b. factory

A car that was designed over 3 or 4 years ago cannot meet the modern standards of today.

You want performance . . . you want comfort . . . you want the long life that only modern engineering can supply.

Then decide today to drive this new-type Overland Six. Already over 100,000 owners have found in it their utmost ideal of what a truly modern car should be.

What you get in this world-famous Six

The Overland Six is a car of exceptional comfort. The big, broad door openings are 31½ inches wide. You can get in or out with the utmost ease. Seats are wide, luxuriously comfortable. There is more cubic feet of inside space than in any car of this price . . . with plenty of room for five full-size passengers. Room to stretch your legs without feeling cramped or crowded.

The rear springs are extra long . . . and underslung. They are 52 inches long and are made of Chrome Vanadium Steel . . . a costly metal, but it's the best for absorbing the jolts and jars of the road.

Nothing has been spared to make this car a positive comfort-revelation. Owners accustomed to more expensive cars tell us this is true.

Get the utmost for your money. Ride in this car . . . test it in comparison to the value others offer. In fairness to yourself buy no car until you do.

The new WILLYS FINANCE PLAN means less money down, smaller monthly payments; and the lowest credit-cost in the industry. All prices f. o. b. factory. We reserve the right to change prices and specifications without notice. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

The Knight sleeve valve motor has been used by the Federal Motor Truck Co., of Detroit, for some years and has also been used in many of the larger passenger carrying motor buses throughout the country.

Records of service obtained by owners of Knight motored cars have reached as high as 600,000 miles while Willys-Overland has many records exceeding 300,000 miles of continuous service.

These facts are important since they are exclusive to this type of power plant and are general enough to be indicative of certain advantages inherent in the form of construction used in its design and manufacture.

The Knight sleeve valve motor, in which two sleeves are used, has been thoroughly tried out through better than eighteen years of constantly increasing use.

Common observation of life will bear out the saying that it is the most selfish as a class, who clamor most about their wrongs.

The art of saying appropriate words in a kindly way is one that never goes out of fashion, never ceases to please, and is within reach of the humblest.

$600,000,000 Saving Possible Through Fuel Economy Plan of Light Cars

NOW the statistician has turned to the Overland Whippet and with his sharp pencil has started to figure out the economic advantages of this type of car. With approximately 600 of these European type sedans and coupes being delivered to owners every day, and with the normal desire of the new owner to keep a record of what he is getting from his gas tank in the way of miles, figures are available from all parts of the country.

They run as high as 33 miles to the gallon over long distances. They average around the 30 mile mark and the statistician says that this is a 50 per cent increase over the average mileage for other light cars.

Based on 10,000,000 light cars now running, with an average of 9,000 to 10,000 miles a year as the total distance covered, this means a potential saving, when everyone is driving a Whippet of $600,000,000 in gas bills alone.

Evenly distributed this would open up a market for 800,000 more Whippet cars out of gas saving alone. Spread over the individual Whippet cars, it would buy a new set of tires all around for the next year's driving. It would take the entire family on a camping vacation lasting a week. It would buy dad a new tweed suit for driving and let mother have the companion suit for herself. It would pay the car tax and help materially on full coverage insurance.

It might result in a national movement to drop the price of gasoline a cent or two because of the reduced drain on the oil reserves of the country.

It would clear the air of 27,000,000,000,000 cubic feet of carbon monoxide a year which should cause the health authorities to welcome the Whippet as one of the great public benefactors and make every picnic ground and camping spot a treasure place of non-odorous ozone.

It is interesting to "size a man up," of course—a great pastime with some; but still more interesting to know how one has been sized up, himself."

Altruistic benevolence is very good for the souls of those who practice it; but what does it do to the souls of those who are its beneficiaries?

To be frantic to make other people conform to your ideas in morals, dress and taste is the sign of a primitive mind.

GARAGE PROUD OF ITS EFFICIENT SALES FORCE

Body Consists of Four Men in Charge of M. L. McDaniel, Plant Head

The Marion Overland Co., is proud of its small but exceedingly efficient sales force, M. L. McDaniel, manager of the company and head of the force said today.

Mr. McDaniel as manager of the firm, has charge of the sales body which consists of only four men, Miller S. Key, S. Prospect-st; Otis Mead, N. State-st; E. B. Bumgarner, Pearl-st, and S. R. Page, Forest-st.

At this meeting, the day's work is planned and outlined. A report of the developments of the previous day is given by each salesman. Every important detail of the reports is placed on record for future use. A file clerk takes care of all records.

Separate Files

Each salesman has a separate file in which is kept a record of all details connected with the selling of an automobile, used or new, car.

The names of persons in the market for new or used cars and the day on which the next call is to be made on each of these persons are important features of the files.

The sales force of the Marion Overland Co., in 1923 was much larger than the present body of salesmen but fewer sales were made in that year than during following years when the force was slowly reduced in number.

With a large but rather inefficient group of salesmen on the job, a large number of sales were recorded but now, with a much smaller and much more efficient group, sales have shown an even greater increase.

Every salesman knows how many calls he makes and how much he makes for each call. With a smaller force, the amount of money earned by each salesman is increased and the incentive to work for the company is greater.

Plan Contests

Contests are often staged among salesmen, increasing their efforts in making sales. Recently, a contest entitled "Around the World" was offered by the Overland Co. at Toledo. Each car sold by a salesman gave that person so many miles on his trip around the world. The winner of the contest was awarded a splendid prize.

Many novel features are planned by managers of salesmen and the sales force of the Marion Overland Co., is among the leaders in an project presented.

FIVE EXPERT MECHANICS IN SERVICE FORCE

All of Latest Machinery for Repair Work Obtained for New Garage

Five experienced mechanics will comprise the service department of the Marion Overland Co., which is located at the rear of the second floor, immediately back of the storage department, in the company's new garage.

All of the latest machinery for mechanical service has been installed in the repair section. Entrance to the department can only be gained from Holmes-pl up the concrete ramp at the side of the building.

The department will be able to repair any make of machine, according to Walter Bailey, foreman of the service and storage sections. No paint shop has been installed in the plant, however.

New Wreck Car

A new Willys-Knight wreck car, finished in red, completely equipped for wrecking service, has been purchased by the company.

The service as well as the storage department will be open 24 hours every day. The wreck-car service is to be available at any time, Foreman Bailey announces.

A storage battery section is included in the repair department with service available for any car. Twenty rental batteries is the total included in the battery department at the present time.

Two washracks, one inside and one outside and a grease-rack also outside has been installed for the accommodation of the company's customers. Frank Smith, Edwards-st, is in charge of the racks.

Personnel

Mechanics of the plant include Frank Drake, Cherry-st, G. W. Keeler, Silver-st, C. E. Rexford, Glad-st, E. N. January, Silver-st, and W. W. Bailey, Pearl-st.

The parts department, in charge of B. K. Hill will be located at the rear end of the building on Holmes-pl, west of the lower floor ramp.

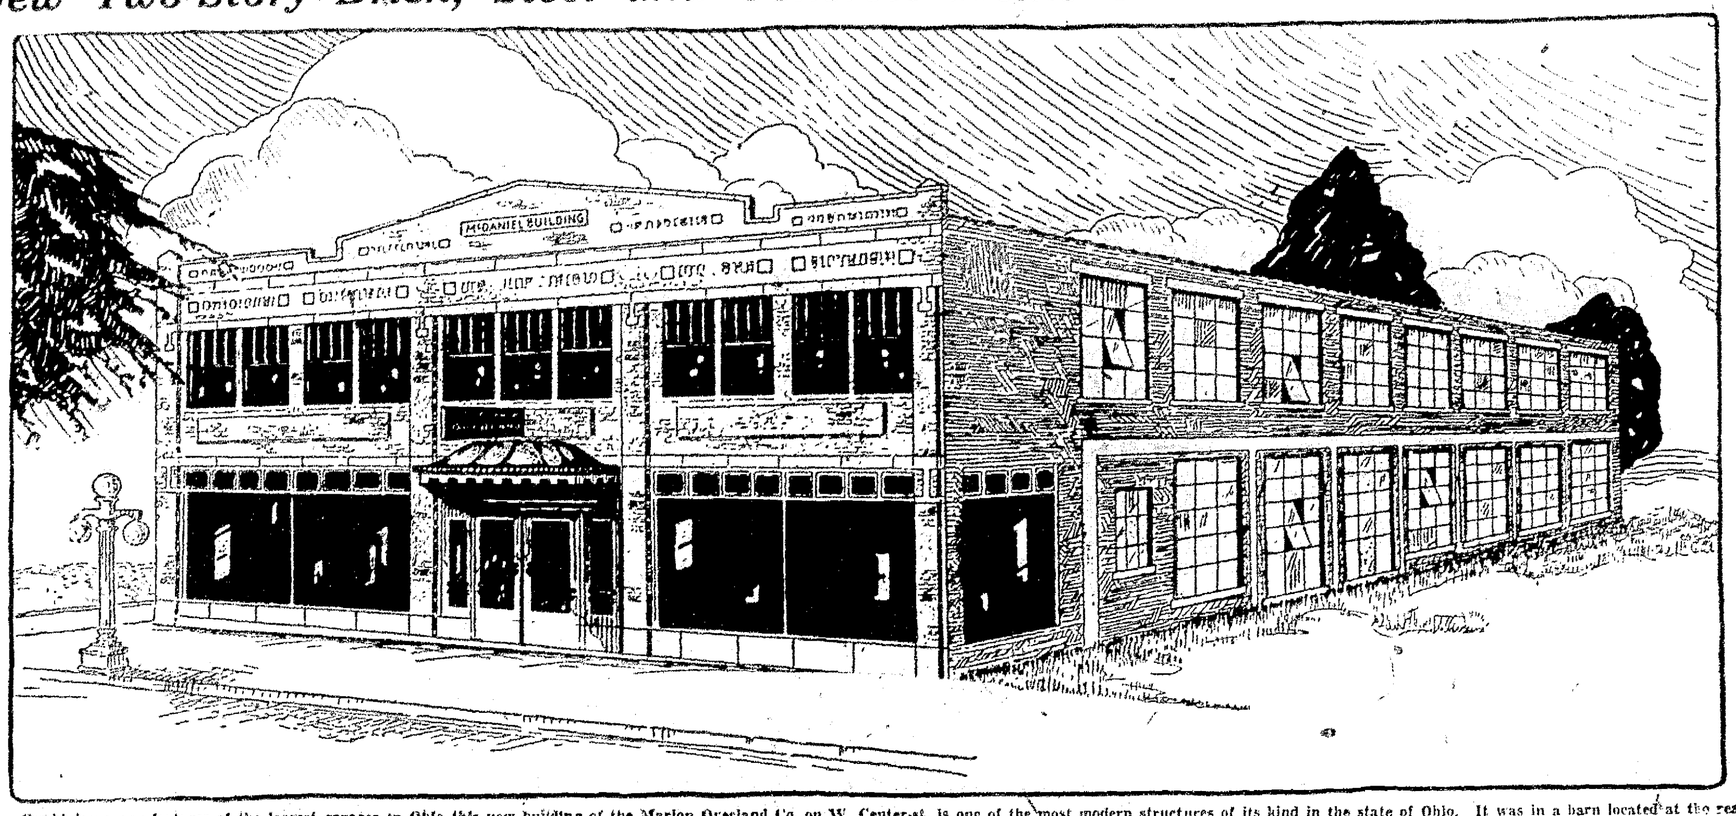
A complete supply of auto tires and tubes, accessories and Willys-Overland parts will be handled by that department. The section will be equipped with the Lyon-Steel bin equipment.

The department is nearly a separate section of the garage. A single door next to the parts display window opens to a storeroom entirely secluded from the rest of the building.

A gasoline pump directly in front of the parts department on Holmes-pl, is also in charge of Mr. Hill. A large canopy covers both the washrack and the pump at that end of the garage.

All collections for service charges will be made and handled through the parts department. Mr. Hill has an assistant and a stenographer to supervise the charge accounts.

New Two-Story Brick, Steel and Concrete Home of The Marion Overland Co.



Combining many features of the largest garages in Ohio this new building of the Marion Overland Co. on W. Center-st, is one of the most modern structures of its kind in the state of Ohio. It was in a barn located at the rear of this new building site that the company began business 10 years ago. The new block is known as The McDaniel Building. In addition to being equipped with all the latest service devices and having a display room of fine appointments it has storage space for many automobiles.

Upholstering And Price Women's Chief Consideration in Purchasing Motor Car

What is a woman's first consideration in buying an automobile?

That question has many answers, according to salesman of the Marion Overland Co. who are called upon to sell something besides duco finish, short strokes, "get-aways", and engine features to the wives of car-hunting husbands.

Not motor, capacity, nor least of all, speed, but that which ever attracts the feminine eye, the only fabric to be seen, the upholstering, or the novelities, such as the enameled lights or radiator caps are selling points with women. When a woman is interested in the purchase of a car, she first gets inside (the back seat of course), fingers the upholstery, then if satisfactory, settles contentedly back to get the "feel of it."

While her husband has his head buried in the engine, she contentedly rests, then suddenly awakens to a horrible thought—"what if there is no foot-rest as there was in the old car?—At once she looks on the floor, finds the coveted foot-rest, places her feet on it and is content until another thought comes to her.

"Are there curtains at the sides?" Finding the curtains she is almost ready to buy the car, but, with the cautious instinct common in her sex, she first bids the salesman to "turn on the lights", pointing to the clever little enameled one in the top of the car or those at the sides above the rear seat. When this has been satisfactorily accomplished and she has switched them off and on several times to her own infinite delight, she climbs from the car and with a critical aspect, surveys the outside. Color? Blue, or perhaps black or a shade of tan. She is pleased.

Inspects Car

While waiting for husband to come to a decision regarding the car she has already decided to buy, she carefully inspects each shiny nook and cranny of the vehicle. A scratch on the right rear fender attracts her attention and accusingly she points out this defect to an apologetic salesman. When the scratch has been removed to her satisfaction, she announces herself ready for a demonstration. The latter proposal the salesman hails with delight and forth they go. Sitting well toward the front of the rear seat such remarks as "how do you know which one of those peddles to push?" "no, please stay on the main street", and "do you teach prospective customers to drive?" confront a subdued husband and salesman from time to time.

Finally she buys the car and with many admonishments as to delivery etc., she leaves.

But that is only one class of feminine automobile purchasers. There is also the type that saunters gaily into the garage, looks the car over with an appraising glance, asks "what she'll do?" climbs into the driver's seat and says "ready for a demonstration." How does the car run is her first and only consideration.

And then of course, there is the woman who shields her first consideration when buying a car, in questions concerning the car itself. Her first consideration is price, but that question seldom comes first.

GARAGE OCCUPIES SITE OF LATE G. W. KING HOME

Residence at One Time Was One of Marion's Show Places

The lot where the new Marion Overland Co. building is located was formerly the site of the home of the late George W. King, former president of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. The King residence was a large frame structure and for years was one of the show places of the city. At the time it was built, W. Center-st was then chiefly a residence thoroughfare and was lined with some of the city's largest and most attractive homes.

The march of progress, however, has increased land values along the street to such an extent that lots there are too costly for residence purposes. One by one, the stately old homes are disappearing and even now it is easy to forsee the time when all of these landmarks shall have made way for business structures.

After Mr. King moved from his W. Center-st property to Etowah, the magnificent home built by him on Mt. Vernon-av, his former residence was occupied by several different tenants. For a time it was the home of Dr. F. L. Baldwin, who later moved to Columbus and was later purchased by Dr. D. W. Cox, a local veterinary and in more recent years was used as a rooming house.

Following purchase of the lot by the Overland Co. the King home was dismantled and moved to the Lawrence farm, east of the city.

FINE RECORDS

With 5,000 dealers already using the new Whippet models in daily demonstrations, remarkable records of power performance are being received. Already a Whippet has been driven to the top of Pike's Peak in Colorado, without having a stop to take on water, a feat rarely accomplished by any make of car.

GARAGE OPENING RECALLS TESTS OF GAS MILEAGE

Newell D. James Winner with 9.1 Miles on Pint of Fuel

The opening of the new building of the Marion Overland Co. and the display of many models in the new showroom recalls the gasoline mileage record of the Overland Six, established during the tests conducted in June by the local company.

The winner of the tests was Newell D. James, 123 W. Columbia-st. James coaxed the Overland Six over 9.1 miles of road, using only a pint of gasoline.

The contest was held for a week, Sunday excluded, with 57 drivers participating. The combined mileage of the contestants was 365.5 miles, only seven gallons and a pint of gasoline being used.

Average 51.3 Miles

The average recorded for all drivers who entered the contest was 51.3 miles per gallon and the car used was a regular stock Overland Six car.

Twenty-five dollars and credit of $25 on a new car was offered by the Marion Overland Co. to the winner of the entire contest. The winner each day received $25 credit on a new Overland.

B. D. Betz, 118 Reed-av, 8.5 miles on a pint of gasoline, average per gallon, 68 miles.

D. Wood, Davids-st, 8.7 miles on a pint, average per gallon, 69.6 miles.

Mrs. George W. Davidson, 601 Pearl-st, 8.7 miles on a pint, average of 69.6 miles per gallon.

N. D. James, 123 Columbia-st, 9.1 miles on a pint, average per gallon, 72.8.

RUNS LIKE "SIX"

Comments by users have been to the effect that in smoothness and in flexibility, the Whippet runs like the average six.

Winter weather has teeth that play havoc with unprotected wood and metal surfaces

When the wind-blown snow and sleet strike such a surface, be it a shingled roof, gate post, or eaves trough, oxidation—rotting and rusting—begins immediately and rapidly. And in an unbelievably short time there will be extensive repairs.

Moisture can not penetrate beneath the durable coat that protects a painted surface. Decay and deterioration can not take place. The saving on repair bills is more than worth the investment of a good paint job.

We feel highly complimented that the owners of the new Overland Garage have so generously allowed us to furnish both the interior and exterior paint and varnish for their beautiful building. WHEN YOU VISIT THEIR GRAND OPENING TAKE NOTE OF THE PAINT AND VARNISH USED. YOU WILL BE GREATLY PLEASED.

GARAGE PLANS DRAFTED AFTER WEEKS OF WORK

Architectural Department of Willys Overland Co., Toledo, Consulted

Many methods were used in obtaining plans for the construction of the Marion Overland Building and the layout of the interior.

Many of the plans were worked out by Manager M. L. McDaniel and Secretary W. H. Scott together with officials of the company. The data was compiled and a drawing had made of the proposel structure before the contract for the W. Center-st location let.

The architectural department of the Willys-Overland Co., of Toledo, was given a great many of the problems. Correspondence was carried on with Motor Age, one of the country's leading motor magazines.

Made Trips

Mr. McDaniels in company with several of the directors of the firm made numerous trips throughout the state to view recently constructed garages to obtain ideas for the local building.

John H. Moore, junior partner of Yost & Hochstetter, architects, had complete charge of the plan of construction. He was assisted by Fred Yost, senior member of the firm which contributed ideas for the completed structure.

Funk & McPeck, contractors, constructed the new building which was made of brick, concrete and steel. Work on the new plant was started April 10. It was built in accordance with the Ohio Fireproof Building Code.

Probst Bros. received the contract for the plumbing and heating and the VanAtta Hardware Co. had charge of the electrical work. J. A. McDaniels was chief electrician.

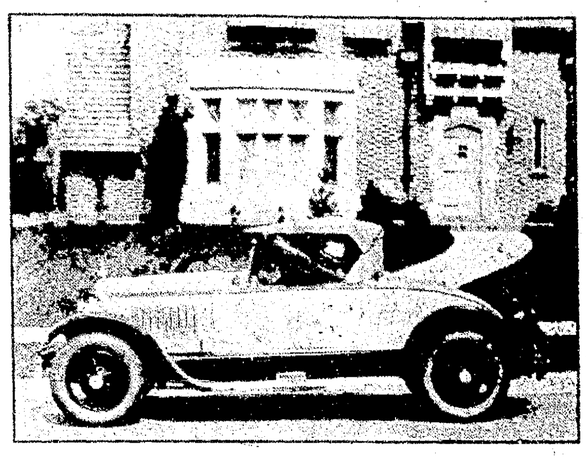
Other firms connected with the construction include. Pollak Steel Co., for the steel; Carey Roofing Co., furnishing material for the roof, and Robinson & Thew, who had supervision of painting the interior.

Brick used in the outer walls of the building were furnished by the Ohio Paving Brick Co. and were made by prisoners at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

LACK OF VIBRATION

The weight of the crankshaft, which is 5 per cent heavier than the average large four cylinder car crankshaft, the large size of the crankshaft bearings, which are equivalent to those used on the large motors, the short, rigid crankshaft construction, the length of the connecting rods which are longer than the average parts of this nature on other light car motors, have all brought about a freedom from vibration which is immediately noticeable in the performance of the Whippet.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SPECIAL SPORT ROADSTER



One of these cars has been brought to Marion for display as a specialty at the Marion Overland Co. garage. Work on this new model was rushed for the opening of the local garage.

Used Car Department of Marion Overland Co. Enjoys Steady Growth Since 1916

"Purchaser Must Be Protected," Policy Adopted by Concern for Exchange; Otis Mead, Experienced Mechanic and Salesman in Charge

Established in 1916, the used car exchange of the Marion Overland Co. has steadily grown until it is now one of the most popular and important departments of the company.

After eleven years of dealing in used cars, the Marion Overland Co. prides itself in possessing a satisfactory plan and system in the handling of the automobiles.

"The purchaser must be protected" is the policy of the department.

"I would rather lose a new car deal than dissatisfy a man who wished to purchase a used car", M. L. McDaniel, manager of the company, said today.

If the used car buyer gains satisfaction from his investment he will inevitably come back when he wishes to trade in his car or purchase a new model, according to Mr. McDaniel.

Otis Mead In Charge

Otis Mead, N. State-st, an experienced used car man who has been in the business for nine years, has been in charge of the department of the Overland Co. for the last two years and has much to do with the great popularity of the used car display.

Salesmen of the Marion Overland Co. are instructed to consider two important questions in taking in a used car. "Is it saleable and if so, how much?"

Although the company possesses a "blue book" with the list of "take-in" prices, no set basis is established in the taking in of used cars. Salesmen must know how much the car is worth.

Mr. Mead, who is in charge of the handling of the cars, sees that every car is placed in the condition that he would personally wish a machine to be, before it is offered for sale.

Every used car carries a price tag, bearing the age of the car, the former owner's name, and the address of the former owner.

The Overland Company does not issue a warranty on the car but gives the prospective purchaser the privilege of consulting the previous owner of the machine and get all points about the manner in which the car was formerly handled.

Plan Satisfactory

This plan, according to Mr. McDaniel, has proven much more satisfactory than the issuance of warranties.

The used car department is well filled during the summer months, the highest peak in number of cars being reached May 1. During fall and winter the stock is kept low.

The local company aims to carry on business in used cars on an even basis, neither making or losing money on deals involving the sale or purchase of exchanged automobiles.

Few persons realize the importance of the used car department. Over a half million dollars is involved annually in used cars in Marion, Mr. McDaniel reports.

Because of its honesty and sincerity and its fair and square method of dealing, the used car department of the Marion Overland Co. is at present one of the most popular in the city.

WILLYS-KNIGHT COUPE POPULAR WITH SALESMEN

Roominess, Speed, Smooth Runnng Motor Some of Appealing Points

The smoothness, roominess and speed of the Willys-Knight Six "Seventy" coupe which was recently introduced by the company, completing a full line of "Seventy" closed models, appeals to the commercial motorists according to announements from factory officials.

With the vast fleet of traveling salesmen ever increasing and the trend toward automobile travel in place of rail transportation the Willys-Knight Six "Seventy" is meeting, records show, with unusual popularity.

It has been only the last few years that commercial travelers turned toward the automobile for their principal means of transportation. This was largely due to the fact that automobile manufacturers were slow to incorporate the features which the traveling man needs. The car of yesterday was too bungleSome, too slow and involved by far too great an operating cost to meet the requirements of this business clientele.

With the introduction of this new coupe many of the modern features were added. Many of the old ones were refined until the Willys-Knight "Seventy" coupe is accepted as one of the most useful business and pleasure cars on the market.

Provide More Room

The company's engineers provided more room in the rear deck, a feature which was formerly considered a nonessential or completely overlooked. The rear deck in the "Seventy" is roomy in every respect. It is capable of caring for sample trunks, suitcases and other luggage which commercial motor car drivers carry.

This new coupe is capable of traveling at equal rates of speed as its sister car the "Seventy" sedan. In certain tests it has maintained speeds betwen 62 and 67 miles per hour, which is ample to meet the demands of any motorists either for business or pleasure.

The operating cost is low, unusually so for a six-cylinder car of this weight, class and type. The Overland engineers so designed the coupe that a maximum riding comfort is attained, another feature which was formerly overlooked in coupe models. The flexibility of the "Seventy" series is another important incorporation which adds greatly to the traffic driving.

WHIPPET BRAKE POWER

The Whippet is the only American built light car with a motor which shows a developed brake horse-power 100 per cent in excess of its rated horsepower. It is the only American built light car with the typically European feature of construction which eliminates piston slaps by building the cylinder walls so deep that the piston never drops below the bottom edge of the cylinder walls.

FAST FLYING Whippet CARRIES DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT PICTURES

Through blinding rain and big city traffic, at 50 to 60 miles an hour on slippery highways, stock Whippet Sedan makes thrilling run on 5.8 gallons of gasoline.

At 1 o'clock last Friday morning three men stationed themselves in a stock Whippet Sedan at 2160 Payne Avenue, Cleveland. Over the wire had come news of heavy fogs which would delay the air mail from Philadelphia bearing photographs of the great heavyweight battle. After four hours waiting, the drone of an airplane motor came through the lashing rain, drew nearer, died in a safe landing.

At 5:44 the Whippet, in high gear, started through the weaving maze of early Cleveland traffic. At the wheel were L. F. Eisler of Cleveland, the driver; F. M. Brown of the Willys-Overland Company and R. V. Blowers, official Dispatch observer. Thousands of cars filled the streets, bearing workers to the shops. Even for the Whippet, quick, flexible, born to traffic, it required slightly more than an hour to reach the outskirts of the city.

Then it was off in a flash. Flying through blinding rain, over drenched and slippery highway, 45, 50, 55, 60 miles an hour, this new type of light car, with 4-wheel brakes, hummed over the steep hills in high, curved downward round treacherous corners, broke into bursts of speed on level stretches that raised the quivering speedometer to the supreme mark of 65—sixty-five miles an hour.

In 2 hours and 26 minutes they were in Linden, 127 miles south, and slowing down for the traffic of morning business after averaging 52 miles an hour over the entire highway stretch.

At 9:46 that morning the photographs were delivered at The Dispatch office—ample time to make the noon edition of the paper. The gasoline mileage, officially measured, showed 25.3 miles per gallon—an amazing record for the high speed run.

Company Attorney

...has been a member of ...ney for the business ...five years. As a conse... ...thoroughly familiar with the company's history and with the elements which have contributed to its stability and advancement. Mr. Clark says that while it is difficult to point to any one feature as being especially prominent in the Overland Co.'s achievements, he is of the opinion that the wise and careful policy that has always been following in the handling of used cars is entitled to first place on the list.

A survey of automobile history will show that unbusinesslike methods in the used car department has been the chief cause of failure among automobile agencies, Mr. Clark says. The Marion Overland Co., discerned the danger existing in this branch of the business from the first year of operation and adopted a safe and systematic policy which has been kept in effect at all times. There has always been a limit upon the number of used cars in the Overland Co.'s hands and whenever that limit was reached no further trades were permitted until the stock could be reduced.

As a consequence of this plan, the Overland Co. has never had any reason to worry over this one feature of the business which has brought grief to numerous other automobile agencies. Adherence to this policy has not, however, stood in the way of the Overland Co. always being able to handle used car trades promptly, but has, to the contrary, enabled it to maintain one of the most efficient used car departments in the city.

E. L. Bush, cashier of the Marion County Bank, is another member of the board who has been of great assistance in the conduct of the Overland Co. business. His knowledge of financing has been especially valuable, since the question of finance is closely linked with both the purchase and sale of cars.

Remarkable System

Mr. Bush regards the remarkable system and close cooperation among departments maintained under the direction of Mr. McDaniel and his assistant, W. H. Scott, as being among the outstanding factors in the company's success. He also assigns a large share of the credit to the agency's plan of service to customers, a service which continues unceasingly following the purchase of a car from the company. Constant vigilance and courtesy in extending every possible accommodation to the public has been the means of not only adding many new patrons to the Overland list but of holding all of the old ones.

Mr. Bush calls attention to the fact that the Overalnd Co. purchased its site and constructed its new building during a period when business in Marion was not at as high a peak as usual and when many other concerns were following a course of retrenchment. This, Mr. Bush says, is an expression of the company's "faith in Marion and Marion's future" which has never lessened in the slightest degree.

Gives Valuable Aid

Edward K. Uhler, of the Uhler-Phillips Co. is the third local business man of wide experience who has rendered exceptionally valuable aid as a member of the Overland Co. directorate. Knowledge of business management gained through his connection with one the city's largest mercantile establishments and other local commercial enterprises has enabled him to offer wise counsel at all times in the mapping out of the automobile agency's policies and deciding vital questions.

Mr. Uhler saws that the fact that utmost harmony has always prevailed among all departments of the Overland Co. organization, from the president's office on down, is one of the chief reasons for achievements of the past and will continue to be the basis of future success. As a result of this fine spirit, every employe has the welfare of the business at heart and is constantly doing his utmost to maintain its operation on the highest possible standard.

The board of directors meets regularly each month but this is not the limit of the members' attention to the business. They are available at all times for conferences and for offering advice and counsel to the executive officers of the organization.

Mr. F. K. McDaniel, a farmer near Richwood, Ohio, is also a director in the company and gives valuable first hand information as to the conditions immediately surrounding the farmer. He knows that the conditions the farmer faces is of first importance to the automobile industry.

Ambulance's Knight Motor Breaks Mileage Records

Surpassing anything on record, a Knight motor has traveled 663,344 miles or a distance equivalent to a round trip to the moon and half the way back again, according to information received by officinis of the Willys-Overland Company, Toledo.

It took 13 years of tough, strenuous, rugged service to pile up that smashing total but that motor is still running and is wistfully, hopefully, confidently winking at the million-mile goal just a few thousands miles ahead.

Still full of stamina and endurance, this Knight motor, with its sleeve valves and sturdy pistons, is vigorously speeding here and there on calls of mercy for the Toronto General Hospital in Toronto, Canada. It is the power plant for an ambulance built by the Russell Motor Car Company in 1913 and presented to the hospital as a gift by the late Sir John Eaton. It has been in continuous service twenty-four hours daily since that time, C. J. Decker, superintendent of the hospital, declares.

Decker's attention was first called to this record run when the head of the hospital's ambulance department suggested that the antiquated appearance and facilities of the ambulance would warrant the purchase of a new one.

In humorous banter, Decker jokingly replied that the ambulance referred to "is a comparatively new one and could not have traveled more than 200,000 miles." He was astonished when shown that it had actually done more than three times that mileage.

How utterly surprised the man who expects some one else to do all the entertaining would be when he goes to a party if the ones who are usually so obliging would leave him to his own devices.

Why does not have to "pursue" happiness? Why is it always in flight? Let our philosophic readers answer that.

New Marion Overland Co. Garage Another Step In W. Center St. Developement

Progress Dates Back to Announcement of Plans for Construction of New Union Station; Lot Offered 15 Years Ago for $15,000 Sold for $50,000

Construction of the new Marion Overland Co. building on W. Center st stands as another step in the steady business development of that thoroughfare during the last two decades or more. This progress dates back almost to the time that announcement of plans for the building of the Union Station was made and has continued with increasing impetus year after year. In the period that has intervened, value of real estate on W. Center st has multiplied several times and the rise is continuing with no indications that the top figure is anywhere in sight.

Illustrations

Numerous striking illustrations of how property along this street has advanced almost by leaps and bounds could be mentioned. One of these relates to a lot near the Harding Hotel which was offered to a local lodge about 15 years ago for $15,000 the deal falling through when members of the organization decided that the price was excessive. About a year ago this same lot sold for approximately $50,000.

Another property, located only a short distance from the new Overland building, sold seven years ago for $14,000 and today it is offered for sale through a local real estate dealer for $37,500.

It is generally predicted that with Marion maintaining the normal increase in population shown in census reports of the last 3 years, W. Center st will be completely built up with business blocks between the uptown section and the railroads within the next two decades. That this forecast is not overdrawn is apparent from developments thus far.

Business Trend

The chief trend of business development is invariably in the direction of the railroad and industrial centers of a community, history shows, and this has been the case in Marion. As a consequence, progress along W. Center st has not been a result of promotion or inflation, but of natural development.

Several wise Marion speculators, seeing ahead several years ago, invested heavily in W. Center st property. Some of them paid prices that their friends regarded as excessive, but results have shown that these friends were mistaken. The investments made by these speculators have at least trebled in some instances.

WILLYS-KNIGHT "70" IS REVEALING UNUSUAL SPEED

Owner records of performance which are coming in to the various branches of Willys-Overland, Inc., indicate that the new Willys Knight "70" is revealing rather unusual speed ability in all sections of the country, according to a statement given out by the local representative after a talk with one of the traveling engineers for the manufacturing company.

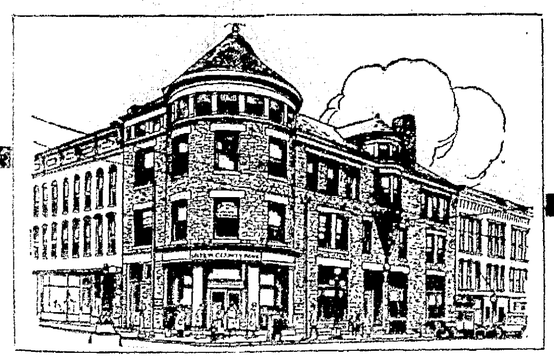
The sedan model has demonstrated its ability to travel better than seventy miles an hour in nearly every part of the United States. High speed trips from Boston to New York, from Philadelphia to Baltimore and Washington, from Chicago to St. Louis, from St. Louis to Kansas City, from Minneapolis to Milwaukee and along the 1,500 mile stretch of Pacific Highway between Seattle and Los Angeles are being reported with marked frequency.

FINE PERFORMANCE

Tests to determine fuel economy have shown that the Whippet factory claim of 30 miles to the gallon at normal driving speeds can be obtained by the average driver. This is a striking performance in view of the high power development of the motor.

BUILT FOR SPEED

The Willys-Knight "70" motor is built for high speed running. The action of the sleeves completely seals the compression chamber at the end of each stroke so that all of the power is held inside the cylinders at all times.



WE sincerely congratulate the officials of the Marion Overland Company upon the completion of the building project.

This fine new garage is a further expression of confidence in the present and future prosperity of Marion.

We trust that this company may prove ever more successful, as its business expands to meet the automobile needs of this community.

Marion Overland Co. Buys Cars On Cash Basis Thus Eliminating High Interest

Method of Financing Purchase and Sale of Cars One of Chief Reasons for Company's Advancement Among Local Agencies; Maintains Strict Policy

The method of financing employed by the Marion Overland Co. in both purchase and sale of cars, has contributed largely to the success and stability of the business. This feature of operations has like all others, been conducted along thoroughly systematic lines based upon the results of careful study and research and close co-operation between the various departments.

Since beginning business in 1916 the company has adhered strictly to the policy of buying automobiles on a cash basis. At no time in the intervening years has there been the slightest variance in this course and as a consequence no note bearing the signature or endorsement of the Marion Overland Co. has ever been in the hands of financial institutions outside of this city.

Benefits of Plan

The benefits of this plan, not only for the company but its customers, are apparent. The extra expense that results from obtaining funds through automobile loan companies, an expense which frequently reaches a high figure, is thus eliminated by the Overland company, making it possible to obtain maximum profits and at the same time keep the sale price of cars at the minimum level.

There have been only two instances in the entire 11 years of the company's operations that all bills have not been paid promptly on or before the tenth of each month, or on the eleventh, in case the tenth should fall on Sunday. One of these exceptions was Armistice Day in 1918, when virtually all business was suspended while Overland employes and officials joined with every other citizen in the greatest patriotic demonstration in the city's history. The other exception was at a time when all of the office force was off duty because of sickness.

High Standard

The same high standard of system and efficiency has always prevailed in the financing of sales, which has been one of the most difficult and perplexing problems of many automobile agencies.

The repair department is operated on a strictly cash basis, but the most liberal credit accomodations are extended customers in practically every other department, including the one handling the sale of accessories as well as both new and used cars.

In order to extend the most liberal credit terms, the company at the outset worked out its own sales plan in which the necessity of marketing customers' notes was absolutely eliminated. Buyers of automobiles, tires or accessories at the Marion Overland agency deal with nobody but the company's office force, which receives and credits all payments. This plan keeps expense at the lowest possible figure and no customer is called upon to pay extra financing charges levied by loan companies.

Three Branches

As a consequence of its financing and collection details, the Overland Co. maintains an extensive credit department which is one of the most important features of the organization's business. This department is sub-divided into three branches, one handling the accounts of purchasers of new cars, the second, used cars, and the third, accounts for tires sold on time payments.

Because it has complete control of its collections from the time of the first payment until the last, the Marion Overland Co. is in position to extend special accomodations to its customers that are not possible with agencies which sell their accounts to finance corporations. There are occasional requests for extension of time from purchasers who become handicapped by illness or some other emergency and the Overland Co. is invariably able and willing to grant such concessions.

Special Sales Plan

A special sales plan, devised and operated along lines similar to the Christmas Savings system used in the banks in Marion and elsewhere, is an interesting feature of the Marion Overland Co.'s method of management. Prospective purchasers who are not in position to make a down payment sufficient to obtain immediate delivery of a car are given the privilege of depositing small sums at the agency office until enough is accumulated for the required initial installment. While these deposits are being made, the Overland company pays six per cent interest on the total payments. This interest allowance is continued until the car is delivered.

This plan has placed automobiles in the possession of many Marion people who would have been unable to purchase cars in any other way.

The remarkably efficient and successful system of credit and financing of the Overland Co. is in a large measure the result of the skillful and expert handling of W. H. Scott, assistant general manager, who is in complete charge of the office affairs and routine.

PAVING WORK WILL INCREASE VALUE OF SITE

Street in Front of New Overland Garage To Be Widened

While the new Marion Overland Building is admirably located for automobile agency purposes, the value of the site will be considerably increased when the W. Center-st. paving improvement, scheduled for next year, is completed.

The preliminary plans for this work include resurfacing and widening of the thoroughfare 13-feet between the uptown district and the railroads.

About two months ago it was announced that while members of the city council favored the improvement and recognized it as an urgent necessity, they were of the opinion that the project could not be financed for several years. Later developments, however, have disclosed that the city's municipal finances have improved to such an extent that it will be possible to obtain funds for the improvement in 1927.

As a consequence, City Engineer T. S. Cathers is preparing to make a preliminary survey for the purpose of estimating the probable cost. This will be completed soon and there is strong probability that legislation authorizing sale of part of the bonds needed for the financing will be voted upon by the council before the close of this year.

Before the paving resurfacing is installed, however, it is likely that a trunk line storm water sewer will be laid in the street to eliminate flood conditions that have been the source of serious trouble in the West Side for a number of years. The sewer construction is regarded as advisable in order to prevent tearing up the paving in later years.

Improvement of W. Center-st. generally recognized as Marion's most important business thoroughfare, will not only be of great benefit to industrial and trade interests now operating in the city and to citizens generally, but will tend to speed up building along the street. This is the concensus of opinion among all business and industrial leaders, who regard Center-st as the city's chief artery of trade and are convinced that placing it in shape to increase the comfort and convenience of travelers will be an exceptionally valuable contribution to community progress.

Willys-Knight Great Six Winning Favor of Elite

The acceptance of the Willys-Knight Great Six as a car of unusual beauty is evidenced by the comments which have been received regarding the appearance of the various models in which it is presented, from women who are notable in the realm of art and social culture.

Among those who have voluntarily expressed outspoken favor for the Willys-Knight are Mrs. Oliver Harriman, a recognized leader in New York social circles, Mrs. Elsie de Wolfe, the interior decorator whose reputation is international, Mrs. Napoleon Bonaparte of New York and Washington and Ethel Barrymore whose name is one of the most illustrious on the American stage.

These women are judges of good taste and distinction. Their comments regarding the beauty and quality of appointments of Willys-Knight Great Six have been exceptional in the praise they offer.

In the mechanical world, Lee DeForest, father of the radio in this country, has voiced equal endorsement, while from Europe, the chief engineer for the royal highness King Alphonso of Spain has sent word that the performance of the Willys-Knight has been personally endorsed by his Majesty.

The lines developed by the body engineers of Willys-Overland for the Great Six model are conservative in modelling with a distinct touch of European influence. Coloring is harmonious with the body development being distinctive and rich.

CLAIMS NOT BORNE OUT

"Claims made by other manufacturers that the European type light car sacrifices smoothness, power, hill climbing ability, durability, comfort and even appearance, are not borne out by the history of the European light car in this country. American owners of this type of car, imported from Europe are paying prices as high as $2,000 for their cars.

Not so much fault is found with Omar Khayyam's fatalistic philosophy as with his rather futile vinous way of making it more endurable.

When I got back from the pasture everyone had went away, and I went all through the house and all the beds was made, and I took the covers off of all the beds, and mine too, and folded the top sheet up from the bottom so that its edge was even with the top edge of the other half, and then I put the covers on and went to school.

We all went swimming in the mud hole after school, and then I wanted to get to bed early so I said to my ant I wonder how a cat feels when it steps on sticky flypaper, and she got mad remembering the linoelum and my father told me to go to bed. I listened for a long time, and then I heard everyone talking and my father laughing, and then it seemed like everyone was coming upstairs, so Jubilee jumped out and ducked under.

My mother throwed the covers back, and there I was all curled up in a sheet that was folded in the middle. My mother said she couldn't understand how come she made such a funny mistake. My ant said when she got into bed and went to straighten out she thought she must be crazy. My grandfather said he thought that before she got into bed, and then he laughed and my ant got sour and they all went downstairs. It is funny I didn't get blamed. A boy gets blamed for everything.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

"Well, are we all ready?" asked Uncle Wiggily one afternoon, when his wife and all the forty 'leven little rabbit boys and girls, counting Baby Bunty, the orphan, had piled into the automobile belonging to Mr. Longears.

"And are we all here?"

"I suppose so," answered Mrs. Longears. "Wait until I count noses. We don't want to leave out anyone." So she began to count the noses of the forty 'leven and one bunny children packed into the big car. It wasn't easy to keep score, for Jingle and Jangle, two of the small rabbits, were moving about, each one trying to twinkle a nose better than the other. So Mrs. Longears counted Jingle twice and Jangle three times.

"We have more bunnies than belong to us," said the surprised lady rabbit to her husband.

"Let me count," suggested Mr. Longears, and, having made Jingle and Jangle keep still, he finally checked up all the pink, twinkling noses, and away they started from the hollow stump bungalow, all the forty 'leven little rabbits, with Baby Bunty, the orphan. Uncle Wiggily was taking them for an evening ride, planning to come back after dark.

All of a sudden there was a sharp, hissing sound and Uncle Wiggily stopped the car with a jolt and cried:

"A puncture!"

"No, Daddicums!" laughed Bumble, the little boy bunny. "That was only my brother Tumble hissing through his teeth. He said he could do it louder than I, and he did!"

"Well, please don't do it again," begged the father of the forty 'leven. "It makes me nervous," and, being glad there was no punctured tire to mend, Uncle Wiggily drove on.

They went along a pleasant country road, where the evening shadows were beginning to gather and the little bunnies began to sing, until all of a sudden Nanny gave a loud dscream.

"Pansy just dropped her doll!" said Nanny. "I screamed for her 'cause she was so surprised she couldn't scream for herself."

"Dear me!" murmured Uncle Wiggily, as he stopped the car while Tumble ran back to pick up his sister's doll. "I wonder what will happen next?"

Well, the next thing that happened was, when Uncle Wiggily was driving the car home, after having stopped at a strawberry shortcake stand along the road to buy the bunnies some cookies, all of a sudden the Police Dog held up his paw to stop the auto and barked:

"I am very sorry, Uncle Wiggily, but your tail light is out and I cannot permit you to drive until it is lighted."

"My tail light out!" repeated the rabbit, trying to turn around to look at himself. "Why, I have no light on my tail."

"I mean the tail light of your auto—it's out," said the Police Dog. "You must either hang a lanter non your car, or get a new light."

"How would it be, Mr. Police Dog," asked Mrs. Longears, "if I leaned over the back of the car and twinkled my pink nose. I'm sure it's bright enough for a tail light."

"No, that will not do," barked the Police Dog and Uncle Wiggily was wondering how he could get to the next garage to buy a new tail light, when, all of a sudden Baby Bunty called:

The Police Dog held up his paw.

"See," went on the orphan rabbit, "it has a lot of lightning bugs in it. I guess they are staying in the hollow log for the winter which will soon be here. If you could put some fireflies inside the tail light, Uncle Wiggily, they would shine through the red glass and make the danger light again."

"Will that be all right, Mr. Police Dog?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Try it!" was the barking answer. And when some of the fireflies were put inside the burned out tail lamp, they made a lovely red glow, so cars behind Uncle Wiggily's auto could see not to bump into him. The rabbit said he would bring the fireflies back to their hollow log next day.

"On your way—roll along," laughed the Police Dog when he saw that the red tail lamp was glowing again. You won't be arrested now."

So the ride came to a happy end, and if the cow doesn't borrow the butterfly's wings to soar over the moon, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the stickery ball.

Marion Overland Co. Places 1902 Model Automobile in Operation on Local Streets

Machine Equipped with Two-Cylinder Motor, Chain Drive, Three Control Levers; One of 10 Cars Produced 24 Years Ago

Slowly wending its way through the traffic of Marion, an ancestor of the modern automobile has been seen on the main streets of the city during the last few days.

The car is a 1902 model Overland and is placed on display by the Marion Overland Co.

The machine is equipped with a two cylinder motor. It has a chain drive. Three control levers may be found, one for gas, one for spark, and another to which no name has yet been given. The third lever has never been used since the car came into possession of the local company and evidently is not needed, as the machine runs smoothly without its assistance.

The old Overland still retains its original coat of red paint. It has no top, windshield or lights.

The car is as originally sold with the exception of three new tires and a new coil, according to M. L. McDaniel, manager of the Marion Overland Co.

The relic of the automobile world was purchased by the Marion Overland Co. about 10 years ago, coming from a farmer near London, O.

Bought in New York

The farmer originally bought the machine in 1902 from a New York dealer. He drove the car from New York to his home, a feat which called for much courage in those days. After using the machine for a great number of years he finally traded it in for a new model.

Only 10 Overlands were made during 1902, according to Mr. McDaniel.

During the last few years the Overland Co. has been placing the car on display beside the newest models, comparing the power and appearance of the two automobiles. It took a prominent part in the Marion Centennial in 1922 and attracts thousands every year.

MARION OVERLAND CO. USES VEEDOL PRODUCTS

The Marion Overland Co., is one of the largest local users of Veedol motor oils and greases, high class products of the Tide Water Oil Co., nation-wide organization with main offices at 11 Broadway, New York City.

Marion sales of Veedol are in charge of Harry Beard of 604 Pearl-st, who says: "We make our products from our own crudes and that is why Veedol motor oils and greases are the same uniform high quality the world over. Our technologists spent years not studying oils alone, but oil films, until they have perfected in Veedol what is known as 'the film of protection', a film of oil thin as tissue, smooth as silk and tough as steel protecting every moving part of your motor against deadly rust and friction."

As an example of the remarkable effectiveness of Veedol, Mr. Beard tells of a bus company operating in a county adjoining Marion which has run a motor bus 135,000 miles without removing as much as a "shim" from the bearings.

There are 24 Veedol dealers in Marion, Mr. Beard says, he assures motorists that any business place displaying the orange and black Veedol sign will be glad to supply them with service at minimum cost, charging only for the oil used.

YOUNG PEOPLE NOT HAPPY, DEAN SAYS

College Woman Asserts Youth of Today Are Groping for Right Way To Live

Boston, Sept. 20—"Young people of today are generally unhappy." This was the astounding statement of Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin, of Boston University, talking to the conference of normal school instructors at Framingham.

"Young people," said Dean Franklin, "seem to be pleasure bent and sometimes morally plunging but in reality they are trying to rid themselves of being bored."

The dean challenged the statement of critics that the present day boys and girls care only for pleasure and thrills.

She said that the youth of today was really groping for something real, true, and tangible.

MAYOR OF AMARILLO BUYS BERESFORD, MEX., RANCH

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 20—The Lord Beresford ranch and 15,000 cattle in Chihuhua, Mexico, have been purchased by Lee Bivins, mayor of Amarillo.

The ranch is on the United States Mexico line and is said to be one of the finest in Mexico. It was bought from E. K. Warren and sons, of Three Rivers, Michigan. Consideration was $500,000.

Founded by Lord Beresford many years ago, the ranch includes a lease on 500,000 acres of improved grazing land and one of the most famous cattle brands, the U, in the world. Bivins has taken charge of his purchase.

Nobody seems to know what the flapper's long suit may be; it certainly is not the one she wears.

$175,000 PIPE ORGAN DEDICATED THIS MONTH

Largest Instrument of Kind in World Installed in English Cathedral

Liverpool, Sept. 20—The great pipe organ of Liverpool Cathedral, which cost $175,000 and is the largest in the world is now completed and will be dedicated on Oct. 18th.

A. C. Temple director of Henry Willis and Sons, of Liverpool, who built the organ says:

"We started work on the organ before the war, but it was held up until peace came. The lowest note weighs more than a ton and is 37 inches in diameter.

"The instrument has five rows of keys 222 draw knobs, 169 stops and 10,934 pipes. It is played by electro-pneumatic action, the mechanism being driven by motors with a total of 35 horsepower.

"The extent of the organ is such that there are 17 telephones from various parts of the instrument for the workmen to communicate with the assistant at the keys during tuning.

"Organists from all parts of this country and the United States are to attend the dedication service and recitals have been arranged.

"The interest in the United States is such that we have had numerous requests that the recitals should be broadcast. Most probably they will be relayed by Daventry from Liverpool for the benefit of Americans."

With more than 2,000,000 people playing the royal and ancient game of golf on over 5,000 courses that cost about $1,300,000,000, there is strong argument that golf has become the national game.
